CAPITAL VOTES ON LEFT TURN ARE POURING IN

Ballots Indicate Citizens Are Concerned Over Traffic Ills.

POLL'S FIRST COUNT SET FOR TOMORROW

Results to Be Announced Daily Until End of Referendum.

PRESS IS ONLY VOICE OF CITY'S AUTOISTS

Membership of Motor Club Welcomes Opportunity for Expression.

By WILLIAM ULLMAN.

Precisely what do Washington residents think of the city's traffic situation?

One of the first efforts to find this out on a comprehensive scale began yesterday with the submission of The Post's ballot on which pedestrians and motorists may express their preference for one of three methods of making left turns. While not decisive, the vote that poured in during the first 24 hours was adequate to indicate one important fact, namely, that Washingtonians are thinking about traffic and willing, when given the opportunity, to express their thought.

The first definite result of the poll to determine which left turn method Washington prefers will be announced tomorrow and the total vote each day thereafter until the referendum is concluded. It is counted upon to reveal the honest sentiment of the city with regard to the present rotary left turn and the two alternative methods, either of which is more acceptable to the best traffic engineering thought of the country.

Press Furnishes Voice.

As Washington voiced its traffic opinion yesterday, it was pointed out in many quarters that local motordom was in the peculiar predicament of lacking an agency, other than the local press, through which it could make itself articulate. It is conceded that business and commercial interests make their point of view known through such organizations as the Board of Trade, the Chamber of Commerce, and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. On their part, local automobile dealers have the Washington Automotive Trade Association through which they speak.

As for the great body of motor car owners, however, their situation is markedly different.

A great many of them, it is true, are on the roster of the District of Columbia division of the American Automobile Association.

That this organization, as it operates in the National Capital, echoes the opinion of its membership frequently is questioned on many sides, especially among public officials whose duties bring them into contact with the A. A. A. Rather than express what the motor club membership think, it is felt that the leadership of the organization attempts to tell the membership what it should think.

The situation with regard to local motordom's lack of a mouthpiece is ascribed to two reasons:

First, that seldom, if ever, does the motor club go directly to the members seeking to ascertain their views on traffic or other matters.

Second, that the board of governors of the District of Columbia division, the nominal ruling group, is frequently disregarded by the national executives of the A. A. A. in dealing with local motoring affairs.

Members Never Queried.

With regard to the first reason, motorists who have been members of the local motor club for years declare they never have been queried by the organization on any subject and are frequently at odds with its statements which are declared to represent the unanimous sentiment of the membership. The situation is regarded by these individuals as the more surprising when the machinery of the club is recognized as so ideally fitted for conducting a referendum if club officials were disposed to so use it.

As to the second point, it is generally admitted that in personnel the board of governors of the District of Columbia division is soundly constituted. The entire group is generally recognized as representing an intelligent and substantial cross-section of the best thought in local motordom.

It is pointed out, however, that while the board meets periodically and considers matters of local interest, executives of the national headquarters of the A. A. A. almost invariably assume the role of spokesmen on community motoring subjects. Accustomed to dealing with national motoring affairs, failing to canvass the club membership, and frequently dealing with subjects that have not come ever before the board

Pope Blesses 200,000 Assembled To Attend First Exit From Vatican

Henry Miller Service.

Pope Pius XI, below, yesterday quit the Vatican, shown above, and thus liberated the papacy from its self-imposed imprisonment of 60 years. He made his exit from St. Peter's Church into St. Peter's square in the presence of more than a quarter of a million spectators.

Pageantry of Medieval Times Marks End of Long Exile.

Pontiff Greets Throngs Outside St. Peter's on Own Ground.

Rome, July 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Pope Pius XI, made his historic exit from the Vatican this evening as the sun sank over the seven hills of the ancient city of the Caesars.

As the magnificent procession in which the first "prisoner of the Vatican" to set foot outside his prison-palace since the fall of the papal states 39 years ago, passed through the great bronze doors of St. Peter's Basilica, nearly a quarter of a million devout Catholics gathered in St. Peter's Square raised a thunderous chorus of "viva la Papa" (long live the Pope).

As "Christ's Vicar on earth" descended the steps of the church, both high above the heads of prince and peasant on a podio carried by twelve men, the bells of St. Peter's pealed out in salute to the Pontiff. The famous chimes of Rome's 400 churches joined in as pilgrims from all over the world bowed in reverent silence, offering prayers of thanksgiving for the evidence before their eyes that the long, bitter controversy between the Vatican and the Italian state was brought to an end by the accords signed in the Lateran Palace last February.

As the message of the church bells rang out over St. Peter's Square and far beyond, echoing through the Arch of Titus, reaching the far stretches of the Appian Way, ringing out over the Forum Romanum, the Campus Martius and the Coliseum, one of the most moving spectacles the Eternal city has ever witnessed drew to its climax in St. Peter's Square.

Two hundred thousand sweltering persons were crowded into the stony expanse of St. Peter's Square on which a merciless Roman summer sun had been blazing down all day when the Pope made his appearance shortly after 7 p. m., toward the end of the procession which had formed inside the Basilica.

The eyes of every man and woman in that vast multitude were strained toward the doors of the Basilica when the head of the procession, modeled after the antique pageantry of old Corpus Christi processions and headed by the papal gendarmes, passed through them at 5:50 p. m. (1:30 p. m. Eastern Standard time). During the next 2 hours and 35 minutes those 200,000 pairs of eyes scarcely wavered for a minute from the procession until the white-robed figure of the Pope, on whose head rested the triple papal crown, disappeared once more into St. Peter's. By that time—8:25 p. m.—dusk had fallen. The great dome of the Basilica was asparkle with myriad lights

500-HOUR GOAL SET FOR ROBIN; 301 COMPLETED

Earning Over $2,500 Per Day, Fliers Intend to Stay in Air.

NEWS FROM RIVALS SCANNED WITH CARE

Storm and Handicap Are Two Problems Facing Texas Aviators.

SHOWER IS DODGED BY ST. LOUIS CRAFT

Houston Contenders Seek to Leave Field as Dirty Weather Approaches.

St. Louis, Mo., July 25 (A.P.).—Approaching the end of their second week of sustained flight, Dale (Red) Jackson and Forest O'Brine tonight were looking toward a new goal of 500 hours in their record breaking performance in the monoplane St. Louis Robin.

With their earnings mounting hourly and the motor of their plane running "like a race horse," the fliers gave no indication of forsaking their temporary home in the sky.

At 8:17 p. m. (C. S. T.) they had been up 301 hours and had bettered the record set by the Angeleno by 54 hours.

Cloudy skies and intermittent showers caused the fliers to drop to a lower altitude as they circled Lambert-St. Louis Field this afternoon, but they soared away tonight after taking on a new supply of fuel. A downpour in another section of the city missed them. It was the first inclement weather the fliers had experienced since they took off July 13.

Rivals Are Watched.

O'Brine and Jackson were watching closely the progress of their rival endurance plane, the Billion Dollar City, at Houston, Tex., and expressed determination to outlast the Texas fliers. The Houston plane, however, was more than 100 hours behind them.

Notes dropped by the St. Louis Robin fliers indicated they were in good spirits and Jackson, who carefully inspected the motor today, said it was functioning perfectly.

In one note, Jackson commented on a newspaper article he read quoting Dr. A. C. Leggat, flight surgeon, as saying that he expected Jackson, who perspires freely, to lose about 20 pounds on the flight, and for O'Brine to lose about 10 pounds.

"Tell Doc he's wrong," Jackson said. "I'm not getting thin. I'm gaining weight. My pants are getting too tight for me."

With the announcement of additional daily rewards, the fliers are now being compensated at the rate of $2,673 for each 24 hours they go in excess of the old record.

Storm Threatens Texas Fliers

Houston, Tex., July 25 (A.P.).—As the endurance plane Billion Dollar City wound up its eighth full day of flying two problems confronted Joe Glass and Glenn L. Loomis, pilots of the craft—bad weather and the question, how low will they have to face a 100-hour handicap against them and in favor of the St. Louis Robin?

The Texas fliers remained determined to outdo the boys who are trying to wear out a perfectly good motor in the Mississippi region. But that 100 hours lead will gape at them until the Robin pilots give up. Only then can they figure what it will take to ruin a real mark.

The Houston fliers this afternoon began to scheme in an effort to get away from a storm hazard. They asked permission to take an official watchman aboard their craft rather than be compelled to stay within sight or sound of the airport after their barograph will have run down, a midair transfer of the official from the refueling ship was suggested.

NEW CRUISER BUILDING MUST WAIT ON RESULT OF ARMS CONFERENCE

Five Powers' Navies Are Compared in Size

Table, Based on Official Reports, Lists Number of Ships of Signatory Nations Built, Building or Appropriated For.

The table which follows gives a comparison in number of different categories of combatant naval vessels of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy, signers of the Washington naval treaty. The figures, based on official reports, include ships built, building and appropriated for. In the case of the United States and Great Britain they cover vessels on which work has been suspended by President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald. Only first line ships are included.

	Capital ships.	Cruisers.	Sub-marines	Destroy-ers.	Aircraft carriers.
United States	18	28	129	260	4
Great Britain	20	62	80	194	6
Japan	10	33	76	115	3
France	9	16	95	82	1
Italy	4	22	67	90	..

The four American aircraft carriers include one of 13,880 tons appropriated for in the law authorizing the recent cruiser program.

All of the American capital craft are battleships while four of Great Britain's and four of Japan's are battle cruisers.

All the American destroyers are World-War type, while England has 165 built, is building 20 new ones and has 9 more appropriated for.

In cruisers, the United States has 10 built, 8 building and 10 appropriated for. England has 52 built, 7 building and 3 appropriated for. Japan has 28 cruisers in commission and 5 building. France has 11 built, 4 building and 1 appropriated for. Italy has 10 built, 6 building and 6 appropriated for.

In submarines, the United States has 108 built, 2 building and 3 appropriated for, plus 14 light mine layers and 2 heavy mine layers built. Great Britain has 56 first-line submarines built, 17 building and 6 appropriated for, plus 1 large mine layer built. Japan has 61 submarines built, 8 building and 4 appropriated for, plus 1 large mine layer built, 1 building and 1 appropriated for. France has 45 submarines built, 32 building and 18 appropriated for, plus 3 large mine layers built and building. Italy has 42 submarines built, 14 building and 11 appropriated for.

View Held That Hoover's Action Is Within His Authority.

DISSENTING OPINIONS VOICED BY NAVY MEN

Tacit Agreement With English Premier Now Held Certain.

PRESIDENTIAL ORDER WILL SCRAP NOTHING

Construction Is Delayed to Watch Outcome on Peace Parley.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

President Hoover is basing his action in holding up work on three of the five cruisers authorized by Congress on his ability to reach an agreement with Premier MacDonald before the end of the year, according to all indications yesterday. And apparently, the conversations that have taken place between the premier and Ambassador Dawes have made the President sure of his ground.

Under such circumstances he viewed with equanimity the mixed reaction to his statement of Wednesday that followed closely upon the promulgation of the Kellogg peace pact.

In administration circles confidence was expressed that when everybody had cooled off from Wednesday's hectic developments, the administration would not be charged with acting without authority.

In the first place it developed that the bill authorizing the building of three cruisers over a period of three years did not direct the President to do anything. It simply authorized the building of the cruisers, it was pointed out. One prominent figure on Capitol Hill viewed this as quite important and said that while the big Navy men had thought they were making the building of the cruisers mandatory they were doing no such thing.

Language Follows Custom.

The argument was made in other quarters, however, that the language used in the bill was the same as always used and that to all intents and purposes it was mandatory.

The administration, however, did not seem to be interested in the merits of this argument one way or the other. According to indications it was not the question on which it based its action in holding up the construction of the ships.

This action was based, instead, on the fact that the President has until June 30, 1930, to begin actual work on the five ships authorized for the current fiscal year. If an international agreement for naval limitation is not reached by that time the keels for all five cruisers must be laid down.

The point that was emphasized yesterday is that the President has not scrapped anything, not even the detailed plans for the three ships that were in progress at the time of his announcement. He has simply announced that no further work would be undertaken during the progress of the discussion.

There is every reason to believe that he is fully confident that long before June 30 arrives the entire situation will have been cleared and an agreement reached.

There was considerable talk, in fact, of a naval limitation conference of world powers before next spring. There was no comment from the White House or State Department to support this belief but it was given considerable weight by Premier MacDonald's expressed wish that Hoover would call such a conference.

Heretofore, it has been the understanding that it was Hoover's idea to leave the question of general

MERGER PROPOSAL IS REBUFFED AGAIN

Washington Railway Line Doubts Group's Power to Deliver.

LETTER IS CHALLENGE

The Washington Railway & Electric Co. yesterday refused the request of the Public Utilities Commission that it submit to the commission a new proposal for a merger of the street car lines.

As the Capital Traction Co. did earlier in the month, the Washington Railway & Electric Co., in its letter to the commission yesterday, quoted the arguments of Harley P. Wilson, director of the North American Co., which owns the Washington Railway & Electric Co., although its letter was signed by William F. Ham, president of the company, as was the letter of the Capital Traction Co. signed by its president, John H. Hanna.

While the reply submitted yesterday was much longer and not so harshly blunt as was that of the Capital Traction Co., it was in its way a stronger challenge to the authority of the commission.

"No action by your commission can make any merger effective," Ham said, and a little later on told the commission that his company could "scarcely assume that your commission is in a position to satisfy us" that "there exists the practical possibility of get-

DR. SNOOK TO LAY SLAYING TO DRUGS

Attorney Hints Miss Hix Gave Former Professor "Love Potions."

ELEVEN JURORS NAMED

Columbus, Ohio, July 25 (A.P.).—Attorneys for Dr. James H. Snook, deposed Ohio State University professor, indicated today they will attempt to show that the 49-year-old defendant killed Theora Hix, his 24-year-old coed paramour, while mentally unbalanced by the influence of dangerous narcotics taken by him and the girl as "love potions."

Veiled suggestions produced by Snook's attorneys in examination of prospective jurors in the professor's trial on a charge of first degree murder were that Miss Hix had given the professor narcotics, secretly at first, in baked goods, and that later they experimented with them freely during their three-year period of illicit relationship.

Dr. Snook's confession of the killing declared that the girl had threatened the life of his wife and child, and believing his own life also in danger, he hammered the coed to death in a quarrel and then slit her throat to "end her suffering."

The jury box was tentatively filled before defense attorney John F. Seidel revealed the intention to show that Miss Hix gave Snook concoc-

CANADA OFFERS AID IN BORDER RUM WAR

Will Cooperate With U. S. to Check Liquor-Running, Says Revenue Chief.

AMERICANS GET BLAME

Ottawa, July 25 (A.P.).—W. D. Euler minister of national revenue, today declared that "Canada is quite willing to keep Canadians out of the business of running liquor to the United States' and offered to engage in "any reasonable measure of cooperation" with the United States Government to prevent any bootlegging across the border.

The offer was made in a statement in which Euler charged that practically 100 per cent of the rum runners are American citizens, and stated that less than 5 per cent of the liquor consumed in the United States comes from Canada.

He said the Canadian government was prepared to enact legislation dealing with Canadian citizens or Canadian boats engaging in illegal liquor traffic. Canada, he declared, spends $1,000,000 a year to prevent liquor smuggling from friendly countries which do not prohibit clearances.

"Canada is quite willing to keep Canadians out of the business of running liquor into the United States," he said.

"Moreover, if the United States authorities will insist on clearances for their own boats to enable them to check and control their own people and the violation of the United States law, the Canadian government is quite ready to consider any further reasonable measure of cooperation with them."

Euler declared that boats engaged in liquor running along the Canadian border are required by the Canadian government to get clearances on this side, but not by the

DIPLOMATS CONFER ON CRISIS IN CHINA

Powers Move to Compel the Restoring of Seized Road to Russia.

STIMSON TAKES LEAD

Determined to bring about peace in the Sino-Russian crisis over the Chinese Eastern Railroad, as the initial demonstration of the validity of the Kellogg antiwar treaty, Secretary of State Stimson conferred yesterday with the ambassadors of Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan and with the Charge d'Affaires of Germany, in order to arrange for concerted pressure upon the Chinese Nationalist government to restore to Russia the seized property of the Chinese Eastern Railroad as an essential preliminary to initiating peace negotiations.

The administration's anxiety over the Russian-Chinese situation has been relieved by their mutual promises to abide by the antiwar treaty, but any slip or clash now, at the hour when the treaty and the disarmament proceedings are holding world attention, would be regarded as an irreparable setback to the entire program.

Hence, the United States is putting the utmost pressure behind peace negotiations, without as yet admitting publicly the extent of the exchanges with the other powers.

Secretary Stimson made no comment yesterday on the calls of the Ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Esme Howard; French Ambassador Claudel, Japanese Ambassador Debuchi, Italian Ambassador Nobile de Martino, and the German harge d'Affaires, Rudolf eitner. The department assured the press that any assumption of inaction would be incorrect.

It was significant that the Chinese minister was not among yesterday's consultants. He has already given

Discovery of Cancer Cure Seems Far Off to Experts

Leading Authorities Are Gloomy in Reply to Inquiries Concerning Methods Whereby Government Might Cooperate in Stamping Out Dread Malady.

Warnings against undue optimism as to the possibilities for discovery of the cause and cure of cancer are contained in statements from leading scientific authorities made in letters to Senator Jones (Republican), Washington, chairman of the Senate committee on commerce. The senator had sent out inquiries as directed by a Senate resolution ordering an investigation of the methods whereby the Government might cooperate in the discovery of the cause and cure of cancer.

The names of those who responded were not made public, but the answers came from such institutions as the department of pathology of the University of Chicago; the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research; the Columbia University Institute of Cancer Research; and the Carnegie Institution, department of embryology. In each case the responses were signed by responsible officers of the institutions.

"A cure for cancer is not going to be discovered very promptly," said the letter from the Columbia University Institute of Cancer Research, "and if the attack from the Government

1,493 State Laws Voided By Court in Connecticut

Measures Declared Illegal Because Not Signed in Time Limit.

Hartford, Conn., July 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Connecticut Supreme Court, in a decision handed down today, wiped off the statute books 1,493 laws adopted in the last six years creating a situation that, while unquestionably only temporary, will cause unprecedented turmoil throughout the State until rectified.

Affecting the business of numerous private and municipal corporations the decision has plunged lawyers, politicians, business men and State and municipal officials into such a state of uncertainty and bewilder-limitations to the Geneva conference before anything can be accomplished there or before anything can be accomplished at any general conference however, it is recognized that the United States and Great Britain must get together.

That they will do this when Premier MacDonald visits here in October the administration is confident. If the premier's limitation gesture Wednesday followed by that of Hoover meant nothing else it meant that Hoover and the British premier were working with full understanding.

Good Understanding.

When MacDonald comes here in October, it is pointed out, his conference with the President will not be comparable to the long-drawn-out negotiations that have heretofore attended arms conferences. Indeed, he and Hoover will have a pretty good understanding of just what they want by the time the premier gets here, and about all that will be left for them to do is to call in the naval experts, lay down a rule and direct them to work in the details.

An agreement reached between him and the British Premier, of course, would have to be ratified by the Senate, but there is no reason to believe that all of this could not be accomplished before next June 30.

Naval experts have insisted, it is pointed out, that no agreement can possibly be reached that does not call for either a drastic reduction in Great Britain's present cruiser strength or a considerable building on the part of this country while Great Britain stood still.

That being the case the 15-cruiser program that this country has already adopted might not be involved after all. Certainly, it is not threatened now, administration quarters insist, because the President merely postponed building which he has eleven months to begin, and which he is temporarily postponing merely to avoid misunderstanding.

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, came to the support of the President, saying that he "deserves the approval in this instance of the American people." The fact that Hoover pleased the Mississippi senator would seem to mean something.

Gratifying, Says Harrison.

"To those of us who opposed the naval construction program during the last Congress," he said, "the action of President Hoover in suspending the construction of three naval cruisers is most gratifying. It is just another spanking by the President of his Republican colleagues in the Senate for going contrary to his views.

"I don't know just why the construction of the three cruisers in the government shipyards is suspended while the work on the two to be built in private shipyards is continued. We tried to make that impossible but failed. The President deserves the approval in this instance of the American people."

He will, however, have his trouble with the big Navy people in Congress on the grounds that the 15-cruiser program was not intended for bargaining at all. This, it is contended, was emphasized in the debates, but seem to be challenged by the provision in the bill itself authorizing the President to suspend the entire building program in the event of an international agreement should he see fit.

In the meantime, it was stated in administration quarters that the most important development of Wednesday, lost sight of in the limitation gestures, was Premier MacDonald's statement that an agreement on parity had been reached. This was hailed as all-important and as really marking a new day between this Government and that of Great Britain. It remains now, it is said, only to apply the famous "yardsticks."

Secretary Stimson, commenting on this phase, said:

Doctrine of Statesmanship.

"The doctrine of parity which was adopted by the Washington conference in 1922 between the American and British fleets as to capital ships was not a doctrine of warfare but a doctrine of statesmanship. It does not look to a future combat between those two fleets, but has an exactly opposite purpose, namely, to prevent such a conflict. Its immediate purpose is to prevent those two navies from building against each other and to accomplish instead a reduction of their respective naval power.

"It thus represented an agreement that they should not regard each other as possible enemies in that they agreed not to take the step which potential enemies would take as the very first step against each other, namely, to try to outbuild the other fleet.

"The doctrine of parity as thus used, instead of being an impossible or futile doctrine, is supremely intelligent. In fact, it is the only doctrine by which two proud and independent nations in the positions occupied by Britain and America could agree to be friends and eliminate the thought of war between them.

"This beneficent principle is now proposed to be extended and agreed to as the principle which should control the relations of the British and American navies not only as to capital ships but cruisers and the other categories of vessels which constitute those navies."

Hale Sees MacDonald's Assent as Outstanding

Portland, Me., July 25 (A.P.).—The most important feature in relation to recent activities in naval limitation of armament in the opinion of Frederick Hale, of this city, chairman of the United States Senate committee on naval affairs, is the assent of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to the principle of naval parity with the United States.

"That naval parity we have insisted upon in the past and still insist upon," Senator Hale said, in a prepared statement tonight. "Great Britain, at the present time, in cruisers built and building, has a very decided superiority over us That superiority must be ironed out if we are to have naval equality.

"As was clearly shown in the debate on the cruiser bill in Congress with the construction of the fifteen 10,000-ton cruisers authorized in the bill passed last winter, we shall not reach equality with Great Britain in this class of ships.

"To reach equality when the fifteen new cruisers shall have been completed, Great Britain will have to scrap many of her ships already built or in process of building. This without regards to the two cruisers which have not yet been started and whose construction Mr. MacDonald has stated is not to be given up.

ting the requisite legal sanction to any unification agreement."

The principal argument advanced by Ham in refusing the commission's invitation was that action by the companies themselves and by the commission could not effect a merger inasmuch as a merger must be approved by Congress before it is final and legal. The companies have been ready to merger, Ham said, and sought to lay the blame for failure of the negotiations of last year entirely at the door of Congress.

That the companies do not intend to have the bus lines, which have been said to cost them considerable losses, left out of any merger, if they can help it, was emphasized in Ham's letter, as it had been expected it would be. Throughout the letter discussion was not of a merger of the two car lines, which was all that was mentioned in the utilities commission letter, but of "the transportation facilities 'street railway and bus' within the District of Columbia."

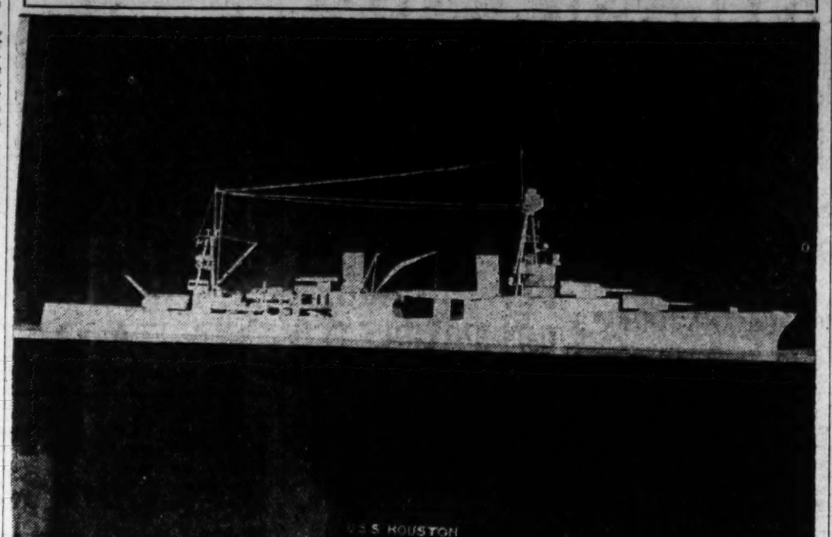
KELLOGG TREATY HALTS WARSHIP CONSTRUCTION



This is a model of one of the three cruisers on which construction has been suspended by President Hoover. The announcement was made shortly after the Kellogg pact had been proclaimed and following the announcement by Premier MacDonald of the curtailment of the British naval construction program. The cruisers were to be 600 feet long, carry nine 8-inch guns, and have engines of 100,000 horsepower, with a speed of about 33 knots an hour. Each was to cost $17,000,000.

POPE PIUS BLESSES 200,000 ON FIRST EXIT FROM VATICAN and the square itself showed the gleams of thousands of candles.

After descending the steps of St. Peter's, the procession, never crossing the boundaries of the Vatican State, to which St. Peter's Square belongs, slowly circled the vast open space. By 7:30 the center of the square had been reached. A little later the Pope moved over the carpet leading to the canopied altar erected before the Basilica. There the Pontiff knelt and two hundred thousand people knelt with him.

At 8:22 p. m., came the most solemn moment of the ceremony. The Pontiff, raising above his head the ostensorium containing the sacred host which he had carried in the procession, intoned the benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

During the entire time it took the procession to circle the square the pontiff was in clear view of all. The platform on which he was borne was covered with a baldaquin of silver cloth edged with small flags bearing the papal coat of arms. The podio on which he sat was an exact reproduction of one designed by Bernini for Alexander VII last used 24 years ago when Pope Pius X carried the host into St. Peter's during the sixteenth eucharistic congress in Rome.

15,000 Troops Keep Order.

Everything went off smoothly at today's ceremonies despite the tremendous size of the crowd that thronged into St. Peter's square. Fifteen thousand troops were on hand to keep order. They were assisted in their task by stout wooden walls which cut the square into four sectors and prevented those on one side from surging to the other in the crush Aside from the fainting of a few women, no untoward incident occurred. Italian Red Cross stations quickly cared for those overcome by the heat.

Extraordinary precautions had been taken to prevent commotions. The streets leading to St. Peter's square were barricaded off to help the authorities hold the crowds in check when they decided there was room for no more in the open space before the basilica.

Overhead throughout the afternoon droned police airplanes, their modernity contrasting strongly with the medieval pageantry below them. Their principal concern was to scout for motion picture operators who might be hidden on house tops in defiance of orders against making films of the ceremonies.

Leading today's procession was a detachment of the Swiss Guards resplendent in the costumes designed 400 years ago by Michael Angelo

Behind them came a ceremonial officer of the papal court, followed by other officials of the Holy See, by representatives of many religious orders, each bearing the banners of their order, by chaplains, archbishops and bishops. There were many American prelates in the procession and also many Americans among the vast throng that watched its progress

Behind the seminarians paced the purple-clad cardinals, followed by incense bearers and members of the Vatican's ceremonial department. The Pope moved at the end of the procession.

Procession Moves in Silence.

After the first cries of "Viva La Papa," the procession moved around the square in a silence almost unbroken except for the solemn refrain of the church bells.

As it reached the bottom of the basilica steps, the procession turned to the right, keeping fairly close to the famous Bernini colonnade which bounds two sides of the square.

The colorful costumes of the seminarists in many cases were covered with white surplices. As they filed down the steps of the church these gave the impression of white billows rolling out from the front of the church.

At intervals during the afternoon massed bands of the Italian Army played papal anthems. When the bands were silent the seminarists sang hymns.

As the march around the square was completed the seminarians took up places on the steps of the basilica on either side of the altar from which the Pope blessed the crowds.

The troops guarding the square probably suffered more from the heat than the civilians in the crowd, for they wore not only heavy steel helmets but also white ceremonial gloves. When the pontiff passed them the soldiers presented arms.

MAN MURDERS WIFE AND WOMAN FRIEND

Row With Mate on Automobile Trip Is Blamed for Double Killing.

New Castle, Pa., July 25 (A.P.).—A quarrel between a man and his wife, members of an automobile party, along a highway near here today, ended with the man, Dewey Seevers, 40, Cleveland real estate salesman, fatally shooting his wife and another woman and wounding a boy. Those killed were Mrs. Stella Seevers, 39, and Mrs. Catherine Rogers, 40, of Cleveland. Walter, 10-year-old son of Mrs. Rogers, was wounded seriously

State officers who arrested Seevers said they believed he was intoxicated at the time of the shooting. Questioned police said Seevers had little to say except that he was glad of it. The cause of the argument was not learned

The State motor patrol said their attention was called to the tragedy when other motorists reported a car in a ditch along a road three miles west of here and that when they stopped to see if anything was wrong, a man with a gun ordered them to keep going Officers who were sent out to investigate found the wounded women and the boy John Seevers, father of the real estate sale man, was injured slightly when the machine ran into the ditch.

Mr. Stimson the Chinese government's viewpoint, which is that no seizure has taken place, but that Soviet railroad employes merely have been dismissed, allegedly for circulating communist propaganda.

But the interested powers do not see it this way, and the present plan is to have them bring united pressure to bear at Nanking to compel restoration of the Russians.

The point has arisen as to what exactly constitutes a return to the status quo ante. Apparently, the prevailing idea is that if China permits the Soviet to resume joint operation of the road, by installing others than the ousted employes, it will achieve a return to the status quo ante, but the question of whether this would not tacitly admit the justice of the Chinese charges of propaganda spreading has been raised.

HEAT IS FATAL TO 17 IN IMPERIAL VALLEY

Mother and Six Children Die of Thrist as Auto Breaks Down on Desert.

SEARCHERS FIND BODIES

Blythe, Calif., July 25 (A.P.).—Torrid Imperial Valley is experiencing one of the most stifling heat waves in its history, with a check of deaths today disclosing that seventeen persons have succumbed in the last five days, including a Mexican mother and her six children who perished of thirst on the desert.

The Mexican family group, accompanied by a Mexican man, was en route over a little used desert road when the motor car developed trouble. The entire party of eight lost their lives.

When the bodies were found, it was discovered the water had been drained from the radiator of the car, presumably to drink.

Nine other victims of the heat, mostly Mexicans and negroes, died in various cities in the valley.

Humidity Is High.

Pioneers declared the heat the most oppressive in years. An extremely high humidity averaging about 78 for the past ten days was cited as the cause of suffering. Temperatures have not been abnormally high during the period, averaging about 106.

The desert victims, Enrique Armenta, Mrs. Julia Perez and her six children, were found dead in their tracks on the desert after several Mexican boys had reported the finding of Armenta's body. Early today a sheriff's party, racing tracks from Armenta's automobile, trekked twelve miles across the wastes before it came upon the mother and her children, huddled together in death.

Heat and Thirst Blamed.

The extreme heat combined with thirst, physicians said, had taken the lives of the group. From the tracks authorities surmised the mother and children had gone in search of help after Armenta's car broke down, while Armenta remained with the machine in an effort to repair it. Armenta's body was found some distance from the automobile.

Friends said Armenta, with Mrs. Perez and her children, had left Brawley, Calif., where they lived, Sunday on a trip to Blythe, a distance of about 60 miles, through a region nearly devoid of human life. This section offers little chance of escape from death under heat condition if travelers are forced afoot.

Other heat victims were Albert Mackey, 76, a Brawley cattleman; Robert Stelbe, 55, a melon worker; Mrs. M. Grenales and Clarence Cathcart, of Yuma, Calif.; two Mexicans, two negroes and a Japanese.

The humidity has been caused by clouds over the valley, a rare sight except in the months of August and December.

CONDEMNATION JURY TO HEAR CASE TODAY

Proceedings to Aid Extension of Prince Georges Road Are Scheduled.

VALUATION TO BE SOUGHT

Sheriff Charles S. Early, of Prince Georges County, will preside at condemnation proceedings, which will begin this morning at 10 o'clock at the Melrose crossing to pave the way for the acquisition of rights of way for the proposed Rhode Island avenue extension from Mount Rainier to Hyattsville.

The properties to be condemned are owned by Mrs. Paul Himmelfarb and Morris L. Weinstein and are the only two in which condemnation proceedings have been necessary. With these properties evaluated and purchased, the State Roads Commission will have practically completed the acquisition of the right of way. Several other small properties are still outstanding, but the commission has announced that the owners are expected to accede to the price the commission is willing to pay.

A condemnation jury will be impanelled this morning by Sheriff Early and will view the properties. The group then will remove to the Hyattsville Police Court where it will hear witnesses on both sides as to the value of the property. Representatives of the State Roads Commission will be present. The condemnation suit was filed two weeks ago in the Prince Georges County Circuit Court. Failure to purchase these two sites is believed to have been the cause for the failure of the roads commission to announce bids for the construction work.

Those who have been sumoned to appear as jurymen are: H. W. Gore, R. L. Wells, Horace Taylor and Jacob Fisher, of Upper Marlboro; W. W. James, J. W. Rogers, Joseph E. Digges, A. J. Baldwin, A. M. McFadden and Charles W. Reichelt of Mount Rainier; Harry Clark and Max Hoffman, of Brentwood; Hugh O'Neill and George Wiseman, of Bladensburg; R. E. McCann, Louis Porton, Pete Galt, John W. Lepper, Paul McFarland and C. W. Walden, of Hyattsville. Eight of these will be eliminated by challenges from both sides and the remaining members will serve as the jury.

Separate proceedings will be necessary for each parcel of property under the laws of Maryland and after the first case is completed a second jury must be impanelled. The same members can serve on both juries but they must be chosen a second time.

The mayor and town council of Edmonston will meet tonight at 8 o'clock to organize for the new term in the Edmonston School. Appointments of the various town officials will be announced at the meeting.

It is believed that the problem arising from the tie vote received by two candidates for councilman from the second ward will be solved at the meeting by the appointment of Martin U. White as councilman for the term of two years and W. W. Lewis for the unexpired term of one year of B. M. McQuin, who died prior to the expiration of his term. The compromise was offered by Mr. Lewis in the interest of harmony.

Others members of the governing body are Mayor Adolphus E. Bost, Councilman Charles C. Martin and Councilman William Page, both of the First Ward, and Henry A. Eberle, town treasurer.

Contract for the construction of a concrete road, curb and sidewalks on each side of Shepherd street from the west line of Wine avenue to the east line of Oakwood road, and a concrete road and curb in West Madison avenue from the west line of Calvert street to the eastern line of New Cut road, has been awarded to the contracting firm of Conway & Harrison of Prince George County, by the mayor and town council of Hyattsville. The firm offered the lowest bid, $31,186.60, of the six bids which were offered.

Two Men Face Liquor Charges at Staunton

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton Va., July 25.—State officers, assisted by Waynesboro police, Tuesday arrested Henry Ayres and Lowell Thompson on charges of violating the prohibition law. Yesterday they were given a hearing before Magistrate McComb and held for the grand jury. Last night they were placed in jail here.

Twelve gallons and three pints of moonshine whisky was found, it is alleged, in a car belonging to Thompson, which was parked on Ayres' premises. Ayres is charged with having the liquor in his possession and Thompson with transporting it. A new sport model automobile was confiscated

Paris Marks Anniversary Of First Channel Flight

Louis Bleriot Feted as France and England Recall Epoch-Making Air Trip of 20 Years Ago; Pioneer Flier Tells of Hopes.

Paris, July 25 (A.P.).—Tonight on the 20th anniversary of his half hour flight from Calais to Dover that opened a new epoch of the air, Louis Bleriot was being feted in Paris, and for the next four days will receive honors on both sides of the channel and in London.

"It was quite a simple trick," the veteran flier said in recalling his day of days. "Latham having had the idea before me to try to cross the channel by air, I waited the result of his attempt. On the 19th of July he hopped off and fell in the sea. Two days later I was at Calais and on the 25th I started, and arrived on the other side.

"What did I think about that half hour? Well, the time passed quickly and I was occupied so much with the oil feed and the level of gasoline and with keeping my direction that I didn't think about anything else."

The pioneer of the air recalled that he had begun life as an electrician's helper at 200 francs a month (then about $40), became interested in aviation in 1900 and was flat broke by the time he had paid for the machine with which he flew across the channel.

"I had to do something big to get back on my feet. Luck was with me and I won 25,000 francs for the Calais-Dover flight and later got as much as 50,000 francs for a 2-minute flight in various European capitals. But it wasn't easy. I was 40 years old and a poor pilot. Yes, I was a poor pilot, for in those days one had to do and learn everything about a plane and 40 is too old for a pilot."

Looking ten years ahead, M. Bleriot predicted regular two-way service across the Atlantic by land planes with floating islands anchored in the Atlantic. He does not believe that seaplanes will ever be built strong enough to withstand heavy seas.

On Saturday the aviator will again cross the channel by air, this time in one of the 400-horsepower planes he manufactures instead of the 20-horsepower plane that took him over twenty years ago.

1,493 STALE LAWS VOIDED BY COURT IN CONNECTICUT

ment as Alice experienced in Wonderland

The court ruled the law is clear that all bills passed by a general assembly, to become law, must be signed by the governor within three days after the close of the legislative session. This three-day time limit is of long standing, but in recent years, with the great increase in the number of measures adopted at each session, the incumbent governors, finding it impossible to comply with this provision and at the same time give each bill proper consideration, have unobtrusively applied the principle of nullification.

Their action in so doing was never questioned—until three months ago—and 1,493 measures to which two governors affixed their signatures after expiration of the legal time limit were placed upon the books and accepted as the law of the State.

It was generally believed this mild nullification would receive the supreme court's benediction. Its decision today was a stunning surprise.

Gov. Trumbull, it was thought tonight, will call a special session of the legislature at once for action to restore the lost laws in toto. The governor is en route to Ontario, Canada, on a vacation, and State officials were making frantic efforts all night to reach him. He is a licensed air pilot, and probably will charter a plane and fly back to Hartford.

Ordinarily the general assembly would not convene again until January, 1931, and the calling of an extraordinary special session at this time is expected to raise as great a hue and cry among the farmers as the predicament, the State finds itself in, has raised from the rest of the population.

Must Act on Each Bill.

Parliamentarians said tonight the legislature can not take blanket action and make all the laws affected valid in one stroke, but must act on each one separately—a job that will take three months at the least. A great many members of the legislature are farmers; there is always mumbling and complaining if a session lasts too far into the spring planting season; and three months now will oblige the farmer-legislators to sit in Hartford shuffling over routine measures and forgotten issues during the entire harvest period.

There is another alternative. The State, which is one party to the action in which the decision was rendered, can appeal to the United States Supreme Court. There is a difference of opinion, however, as to whether this would act as a stay of execution, and it is doubtful if it will be resorted to.

So far as a preliminary check tonight disclosed, no laws of broad import are affected. Such legislation the governors usually have made a point to attending to with dispatch. It was the routine measures mostly, acts authorizing private corporations to make capital increases or reduce the par value of their stock, and towns and cities to issue bonds, or technical measures which required study and investigation, that were allowed to remain in the executive portfolio pending the gubernatorial pleasure.

"We recognize the gravity of such a decision," the Supreme Court declared, "but we are forced to make this finding on the facts of the case."

Decision Based on Suit.

The decision comes as a grand climax to a suit brought by the "Fighting McCooks"—one of the oldest families in Connecticut, and so called because it has been represented in every major war in which the Union has participated—which has dragged through six years of litigation in State courts.

The McCooks refused to sell part of their seaside summer estate at Niantic, wanted by the State to enlarge a children's tuberculosis sanitarium adjacent, and the 1923 general assembly passed an act confiscating the desired land. This measure was signed by the governor two weeks after the legislature adjourned.

The family, represented by Maj. Anson T. McCook, Hartford attorney, fought giving up its grounds, claiming the State was exceeding its authority and the confiscatory act unconstitutional. It was not until the case was argued in the Supreme Court, however, that the McCooks brought forward in support of their claim the fact that the act was signed two weeks after the adjournment of the session which passed it, in violation of the law.

Although this provision was ignored by governors prior to 1923, the Supreme Court decision is not retroactive beyond that date, affecting only such laws as were signed after the three-day limit since 1923, when the McCook suit was instituted.

tions which may have influenced the killing.

"Have you ever worked in a bakery?" Seidel asked each woman juror. They replied negatively.

"The sandwiches they ate were made of bread," Seidel replied later when asked to explain the mysterious question.

The attorney refused to explain further, but the intimation he dropped was that narcotics, sometimes used in connection with yeast, had been employed by Miss Hix in making baked goods and thus given to the profesor.

Seidel also asked jurors if they would be prejudiced against the defendant if they were shown that "narcotics figured closely in the case."

After the tentative jury was completed, both sides exercised peremptory challenges and only eleven jurors remained when court adjourned.

Thirty-nine State witnessed were under call tonight to report tomorrow but there was little likelihood that they would testify before Monday.

Henry County Offers Poorhouse for Sale

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsville, Va., July 25.—The supervisors of Henry County have advertised the county poorhouse for sale.

The reason is that Henry County has joined hands with several other nearby counties in operating jointly a regional poorhouse, the operating costs of which, when undertaken jointly, will be less than under the county unit plan. The new regional almshouse near Chatham is nearing completion.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

APPROVAL of the treaty which would permit both Canada and the United States to take more power from Niagara Falls has been held up in the Senate foreign relations committee by a combination of interests. These interests are three. One to force cooperation at the same time on the St. Lawrence waterway, the second seeking a revision of the Puget Sound fisheries treaty, and the third seeking some way out of the Supreme Court decision on the amount of water taken out of Lake Michigan by the Chicago Drainage Canal.

This last influence, incidentally, has been the most potent. Senator Deneen, of Illinois, who is facing a hard fight for renomination next time from Mrs. Medill McCormick, is moving heaven and earth to make a hit with his constituents. He is said to have had the most influence in blocking the Niagara power treaty. Just how Chicago expects to work the situation out no one here seems to know, in the face of the sweeping character of the Supreme Court decision.

* * * *

COOPERATING with Senator Deneen are the senators from Washington State, Jones and Dill. They are being urged by interests back home against the salmon treaty, believing that the clause giving the two nations an equal division of the catch is unfair to them and favorable to Canada. Incidentally, there is another phase of the treaty which has virtually nothing to do with Canada, but to which they object. They want the commissioners to administer the treaty for this country to be named locally instead of appointed from Washington by the Federal Government.

Meanwhile the temper of official Washington is such that the task of holding up the Niagara power treaty is not a difficult one. The point is that the so-called "Power Trust" is in high disfavor. There has been a great deal of publicity lately about it, and the fact that the International Power Co. has been buying control of many newspapers, as just exposed in sensational hearings, has contributed to this disfavor.

* * * *

EVEN the influence of New York State, which might be considered, without an examination of local political conditions, is against the ratification. This hangs on the fact that both senators from New York—Copeland and Wagner—are now Democrats, and therefore inclined to side with former Gov. Smith in his power ideas rather than with the Republicans either in New York or in the Federal Government. So they are glad to help muddy the water.

The whole of the Northwest, and much of the lower Middle West, is enthusiastically in favor of the St. Lawrence waterway, just as New York has been against it. Therefore, it has been easy for the Illinois and Washington senators to rally support on the ground that Canada should approve the St. Lawrence scheme if the U. S. is to give its assent to the Niagara power expansion.

Even Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, in which the three proposals center, is inclined to believe that the State Department could induce the Canadian government to throw all three of these boundary water questions into the same basket.

Altogether, however, it is a most curious combination of very divergent interests, all of whom want something from Canada. Actually there is almost no sympathy in any other section of the country with the resistance of Illinois to the Supreme Court decision as to the amount of water taken out of Lake Michigan through the Chicago Drainage Canal. Yet the Illinois senators have been able to rally New York, which is opposed to the St. Lawrence waterway, and the North and Middle West, which is in favor of it, and the Puget Sound country, which cares nothing about it, to aid in the controversy, and to such an extent that even Senator Borah is visibly impressed.

FARMERS AND GRAIN MEN TO COOPERATE

Group Named in Frederick to Study U. S. Farm Act Provisions.

WILL VISIT WASHINGTON

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., July 25.—A committee representing grain traders and farmers of Frederick, Carroll and Montgomery counties, in conjunction with Dr. F. B. Bomberger, of the extension service, University of Maryland, was appointed at a joint meeting of committees of grain dealers and farmers to go to Washington and seek first-hand information in the interest of forming a cooperative association under the provisions of the Federal Farm Relief Act.

The committee, composed of James H. Gambrill, of this city; Clyde Thomas, of Gaithersburg, and C. M Horst, of Lynwood, Carroll County, representing farmers, will visit Washington and learn from an authoritative source steps necessary to be taken toward securing loans for a cooperative marketing organization and report at another joint meeting of the committees.

Dr. Bomberger briefly outlined information he was able to obtain toward taking steps to form a cooperative organization. He said that while hundreds of inquiries have been received in Washington in reference to the act he was of the opinion that no action could be taken for the handling of this year's wheat crop. He based this opinion on the fact that the farm board had much to do in the way of establishing itself in office, securing a clerical force and attending to other preliminaries before it could function.

Mr. Gambrill, Mr. Thomas, Mr. Nicodemus and Mr. Horst, of the grain dealers' committee, and Edgar L. Thomas, W. L. Jones and one or two others of the farmers' committee, indorsed the appointment of committee to visit Washington.

After definite information has been received, farmers will be asked to sign marketing contracts which will automatically make them a member of the cooperative organization which will take over grain plants and elevators under the provisions of the act. The sentiment of the meeting indicated that both dealers and farmers are in harmony with the move for a cooperative organization.

INDUSTRIAL SURVEY IS ARLINGTON PLAN

Object Is to Seek More Factories to Locate in the County.

ROAD DETOURS MARKED

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST,
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The question of arranging for an industrial survey of Arlington County by experts, as introduced by Henry C. Morris, member of the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce, now is one of the leading matters being considered by the executive committee according to an announcement last night by Executive Secretary F. P. Woodbridge.

"Industrial promotions of a certain type are, of course, possible for any community, but American communities have learned in recent years, at a cost of billions of dollars, that the only industry that has any real value to the community, even where it has responsible backing, is the industry in which the cost of raw material, labor cost, power rates, market facilities and other features entering into the cost of production and distribution are such that that industry can compete on an even basis with similar industries located elsewhere.

"The planning and zoning work now being done in the county will determine to a reasonable degree what areas within the county are available for industrial sites. The industrial survey will determine what types of industries we can endeavor to interest in locating here with the maximum possibility of success and by thus narrowing the field will reduce the actual cost of securing such industries while at the same time reducing the possibilities of failure after it has been located. The Virginia Polytechnic Institute, which it is proposed to use, is particularly well equipped to perform this service and does so at actual cost as its contributions to the welfare of Virginia counties."

Assurance was given last night by County Engineer L. C. Kinnier that the question of detours during the construction of both the Lee highway by the State and the Wilson boulevard by the county, have been given consideration and that the plans have been so worked out that there will be little or no delay by motorists reaching Washington from Falls Church and points between there and Clarendon.

Engineer Kinnier said that all detour roads will be properly marked and a full notice in due time will be given out.

An alarm sounded at an early hour yesterday morning for a fire in the Joseph L. Crupper lumber yard, at Rosslyn, brought every department in the county. An investigation made by Chief Jack A. Spates, of the Cherrydale Department, showed that a false alarm had been sounded.

Hardly having time to reach their respective fire houses and go to their homes, another alarm brought the fire fighters to South Washington, where they found a small fire had broke out in the charging rooms of the Southern Oxygen Plant. The damage was said to be less than $300 by officials who were called.

Having some months ago agreed to relocate the Courthouse road leading from Rucker avenue, the final papers were drawn up yesterday by counsel vacating the present road and providing for its relocation.

The papers will be signed today by the firm of Lyon & Fitch, owners of the property and the county board of supervisors.

It is understood that with the signing of the papers by the parties concerned that the county will proceed to reconstruct Courthouse road from Rucker avenue to a point where it meets the Wilson Boulevard.

Further appointments of precinct chairman will be made at a meeting to be held Monday night.

The Arlington County Zoning Commision will meet tonight at the courthouse at 7:30 o'clock. At this meeting all pending applications for permits for the erection of new buildings will be given consideration by the commission.

Work was started yesterday by the firm of Lyon Fitch for the resurfacing of Ellerson avenue from the Key boulevard for a distance of one block and Oak street from Virginia avenue to the Wilson boulevard.

The Arlington Rotary Club at its meeting yesterday decided to hold a special meeting for the presentation of the charter of the local club the night of August 12 at 7 o'clock. The meeting will be held at the Washington Golf and Country Club and the presentation will be made by District Governor Jule Burrows assisted by Past District Governor John Weymouth.

J. Hammond Brewer, jr., secretary, who attended the annual conference recently held at Staunton, made his report.

The Sunday school of the Arlington Methodist Episcopal Church will hold its annual picnic today at Glen Echo.

The Cherrydale Council, Daughters of America, will hold a special meeting tonight at the home of Miss Martha Marcey, on the Lee highway.

Plans to attend the district meeting to be held at McLean Monday night will be completed at this meeting.

Funeral services for Mrs. Edna H. Taylor, 60 years old, who died at her home in Arlington Wednesday night, will be conducted from the Arlington Presbyterian Church today at 2 o'clock. Interment will be private.

Mrs. Taylor was formerly the head of the young people's branch of the District of Columbia Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

Taylor, of Washington; two sisters, Mrs. Anna Tucker, of Norfolk, Va., and Mrs. Charles Baker, of Spence, N. C., and a brother, Huntley M. Harvey, of New York.

1,000 ARE STUDYING 4-H SHORT COURSE

Officers Are to Be Elected at Session This Afternoon.

ACTIVITIES FILL DAYS

Blacksburg, July 25.—With more than 1,000 boys and girls from all sections of Virginia attending the eleventh annual 4-H short course, the Virginia Polytechnic Institute campus has taken on the appearance of a boom town or a numerous-ring circus. From 6 o'clock in the morning when the bugle starts the day until 10 o'clock when taps are sounded, every minute is filled with instructional, recreational or inspirational activities.

The mornings are devoted to group instruction in various phases of agriculture or home economics with most of the explaining or demonstrating being done by members of the V. P. I. agricultural faculty. The afternoons are taken up with games, contests, trips, committee meetings, club assemblies, and vespers immediately after supper. The evening program of entertainment is held in War Memorial Gymnasium.

It is an effective organization C. A. Montgomery, State boys' club agent; Miss Hallie L. Hughes, State girls' club agent; Gordon A. Elcan, assistant State boys' club agent, have developed. A bank and a postoffice, managed by club members is in full operation. And, of course, in order to be a complete town, a daily newspaper is necessary. The mimeographed "4-H Clover Leaves" fills this function every afternoon with lively news items, a cartoon, editorials and poetry.

The editorial staff is composed of Charles Barrell, Buckingham; John Pryor Atkinson, Dinwiddie; Virgil Updike, Rappahannock; Miss Marjorie Dixon, Norfolk; Miss Belle McGregor, Stafford; Charles Miller, Giles; Miss Mabel Gordon, Mecklenburg; Keith Oliver, Princess Anne; Miss Ellen Pegram, Dinwiddie.

Election of officers will take place tomorrow afternoon. That evening initiation exercises for those honored by election to the "All Stars" will be held. The highest honor that can come to a member of the 4-H clubs in Virginia is to be elected to the "All Stars." From 30 to 75 boys and girls are expected to be honored on the basis of their work during the past year.

Club members are not the only ones meeting here this week, for many of their leaders—adults who give their time to directing club activities in their communities—are taking part in a special conference which is being directed by B. L. Hummel, C. A. Montgomery, W. E. Garnett and Miss Hallie Hughes. Community organization, social aspects of club work, recreational leadership are some of the topics being considered at the leader conferences which take place every morning.

Victim of Auto Crash Caused by Bee Rallies

Special to The Washington Post.

Leesburg, Va., July 25.—Mrs. Harlan Smith, of Irvington, N. J., who was seriously injured in an automobile wreck on the Leesburg-Aldie pike on Tuesday of last week and who remained unconscious at the Loudoun Hospital several days, has regained consciousness and is improving. The others injured in the head-on collision, Mr. Smith, George Bolen and Earl Carty, of Mountville, and William Risdon, of Middleburg, have improved sufficiently to be dismissed from the hospital.

The accident was caused by the buzzing of a bee in the car of Mr. Smith, who, with his wife, were touring Virginia on their honeymoon. This buzzing caused him to lose control of the car, which crashed into the one driven by George Bolen, wrecking both machines.

STAUNTON IS HOST TO BUSINESS MEN

Banquet Will Conclude the Clubs' Activities Tonight.

LONG PARADE IS STAGED

Staunton, Va., July 25.—Business men of Charlottesville, Waynesboro and Staunton held an impressive good will celebration here this afternoon and brought their program to a close with a banquet in the Stonewall Jackson Hotel tonight.

The event was sponsored by the Staunton Young Men's Business Club as an evidence of appreciation of similar hospitality extended by the Charlottesville Club several weeks ago, when a large delegation of local men was entertained in the University City.

S. Rothwell, the club's president, headed the Charlottesville representatives, 137 strong. Other club officers include, Justice R. Watson Sadler, vice president; Mason S. Byrd, treasurer, and W. F. Carter, secretary.

Mayor J. S. Brown and Commissioners Fred L. Watson, Fred Twyman and E. A. Joachim also were in the party as were representatives of the Charlottesville American Legion Post, Rotary, Kiwanis and business and professional women's clubs, Elks, Retail Merchants Association, Chamber of Commerce, other city officials, and Prof. G. G. Maphis, head of the University of Virginia summer school and director of the Institute of Public Affairs.

Several score Staunton club men, headed by Mayor Julius I. Witz and Edward Woodward, Post Club president, motored to Waynesboro. A parade was formed at the outskirts of this city and the Charlottesville Municipal Band and the Stonewall Brigade Band of Staunton furnished the music. The route of the parade was by the birthplace of Woodrow Wilson, where appropriate exercises were held. Then after covering the business district, the parade ended at the grounds of the Virginia School for the Deaf and the Blind, where a baseball game was staged between the Charlottesville and Staunton clubs. At the end of six innings, the score was 12-12. Further play was halted in order to allow visitors to prepare for the banquet.

Waynesboro's delegation was headed by Mayor W. H. Gardner and City Manager I. G. Vass and the club officers, F. E. Edmonds, president; F. A. McCormick, secretary; J. Tucker Cooke, vice president, and A. L. Willis, treasurer.

side of this question is to be effective, it would imply the creation of a group of outstanding men with ample equipment and money for salaries and supplies over a long period of years. If that can not be done by Congress the work had better not be begun."

This letter suggested that at least $75,000 per year for several years would be required.

The department of embryology of the Carnegie Institute declared that science is "still very much in the dark" as to the cause and cure of cancer.

From the Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health came the statement:

"We have no lead at present that is specially promising and the most hopeful method to follow would seem to be to multiply the workers who are devoting themselves to such studies in the hope that thereby light may be thrown upon this difficult question."

A member of the department of pathology at Cornell University objected to the phraseology of the Senate resolution on the ground that it "holds out a hope for an early discovery of the cause and cure of cancer." He added:

"I do not believe that any such hope is justified and I do not think it is wise for the United States Government to adopt a resolution which infers that such a hope may soon be realized."

ALEXANDRIA PLANS FOR $40,000 LOAN

City Council Delays Action on Routine Matter Under Its Rules.

LEGION TO GIVE PARTY

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A special meeting of the city council was held yesterday and two resolutions appropriating funds were introduced and held over under the rules.

The first was a resolution providing for a temporary loan of $40,000 in anticipation of the collection of current taxes, the loan being for the purpose of meeting operating expenses of the city for August and September. These loans are made as a matter of routine and it is understood they do not indicate an insufficiency of funds, and are repaid from the tax collections.

The second resolution provided for the appropriation of $1,500 as a fee to C. C. Carlin and Gardner L. Boothe, attorneys, for their services in connection with the drawing up of an agreement between the City of Alexandria and the United States for the use by the Department of Agriculture, bureau of public roads, of Washington street as a part of the proposed Mount Vernon boulevard. The agreement was approved by the council at a recent meeting.

Attorney J. Reece Duncan appeared before the council in reference to a recent order of the council canceling a permit for an advertising sign which was placed on the 700 block South Patrick street for the Penn Daw Hotels. The permit for installation of the sign is understood to have been granted by former City Manager Paul Morton, under a misapprehension, and when it was brought to the attention of the council it was ordered canceled. The owner of the property upon which the sign was erected filed a protest against the cancellation through his attorney, who was informed that the council would entertain a properly signed petition should he care to present such. No further action was taken.

Between 50 and 60 members of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, will go to the State convention at Petersburg the first week in September, it is understood. The delegation will be accompanied by the Legion drum and bugle corps, composed of 38 members, which will enter the annual contest for post honors.

A garden party will be given to raise funds to pay the expenses of the drum and bugle corps on the lawn of the Xaverian Brothers School, at 306 North Washington street. Louis F. Hoy is chairman of the committee on arrangements, with Mrs. Julian Ballenger as assistant chairman. The affair will be staked by the American Legion Auxiliary under the auspices of the Legion post.

A man giving the name of Edward G. Bond, 20 years old, of Takoma Park, has been arrested by the local police for the District of Columbia authorities. The Washington police, according to the local department, charge that the man took two microscopes, valued at $200, from the Washington Sanitarium. Bond agreed to accompany the Washington officers without requisition papers.

Ella Tyree, 17, and Bessie Farrow, 19, who gave their address at 317 East Franklin street, Richmond, were taken in custody yesterday by the local police, at the request of Chief of Police S. P. Perry, of Fredericksburg, and were charged with being runaways. The girls were turned over to their parents.

T. R. Mickey, of Ballston, Arlington County, reported to the local police yesterday that two sets of carpenter tools, valued at $80, had been stolen from a tool house on the Adams estate on King Street road. The police are investigating the loss.

The Fidelis Bible Class of the First Baptist Church, of which Norman L. Williamson is teacher, entertained the members of the Valiant Knights Bible Class, of which R. H. Cox is teacher, at a point on the Fort Humphreys road several nights ago, about 40 members of the two classes attending. The trip was made in private automobiles.

Charles J. Sullivan, 58 years old, employed as foreman for W. A. Smoot and Company, died yesterday at his home, 322 North Columbus street, after a long illness. He had been in the employ of the Smcot firm 40 years, and at one time was a member of the city council. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Kate B. Sullivan; one daughter, Mrs. Kathleen S. Wells, and two sons, Charles B. and Courtney Sullivan.

Funeral services will be conducted at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning from St. Mary's Catholic Church, and interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Farmers Are Hurt By Potato Thefts

Trucks Come to the Fields at Night to Carry Them Away.

Salisbury, Md., July 25 (A.P.).—A bootlegging trade in potatoes has cost farmers on the eastern shore of Virginia about ten carloads, the amount they estimate has been stolen from fields and cars, it was reported here today.

In the dead of night, they said, big trucks have taken on loads of potatoes packed and left in fields near Newchurch and Onley, Va., awaiting shipment, and at Onley three freight cars were opened and 240 barrels taken from them.

The farmers believe the trucks have been carrying the stolen potatoes to Philadelphia and New York markets, and credit the advent of this form of theft to the high prices which make it profitable.

TAKOMA PARK FIGHTS RAILROAD SIDE TRACK

Taking of Testimony Was Concluded in Case Yesterday.

POLICEMAN IS INJURED

Testimony in the controversy between the town of Takoma Park and the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad over the use of a freight siding in North Takoma Park yesterday was completed in Rockville Circuit Court before Attorney Kenneth Lyddane, examiner in chancery of the court. The only testimony yet to be given is that of Daniel Willard, president of the railroad. Counsel for the town has asked that he be subpenaed for questioning.

The town is asking the court to dissolve the temporary injunction granted to the railroad preventing the town officials from interfering with the use of the siding by the railroad pending settlement of the ownership of the land by the court. The town officials claim that the property used for the siding is a part of the park lands of the town and that the freight siding is a nuisance to the inhabitants of the town.

Much testimony in support of the town's contention has been presented in the past two weeks and the railroad has presented evidence to show that the land has been continuously used as a siding for the railroad since 1892. Town witnesses yesterday testified that the siding had been overgrown with weeds and bushes for years until the beginning of the World War and the construction of Walter Reed Hospital. One witness even went to the extent of describing the varieties of weeds and grasses and the garter snakes and insects which infested the area, she said.

All of the witnesses declared that they had seen town employes cut the grass on a number of occasions, which act is claimed by attorneys for the town to have been an acceptance of jurisdiction over the strip by the town.

Montgomery County Policeman Robert Darby, of the Rockville police headquarters, yesterday was injured when his motorcycle skidded while he was rounding a curve on the Rockville-Gaithersburg pike and he was thrown. Darby was taken to the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring, where he was found to have been lacerated about the body and to have a broken thumb. His condition was declared not serious.

According to the police report, Darby was returning from Gaithersburg to Rockville and a short distance from Rockville was rounding a sharp curve when his motorcycle skidded off the concrete shoulder and threw him. He was riding a solo motorcycle at the time. He ordinarily rides a motorcycle with side car, and it is believed that this caused him to overestimate the stability of the motorcycle at the turn.

Sergt. Guy Jones, in charge of the Silver Spring substation of the Montgomery County police, announced yesterday that State Policeman Hattaway, of the Laurel substation, will be at the Silver Spring police station to inspect all cars which have not been inspected in accordance with the order of Motor Vehicle Commissioner E. Austin Baughman. Hattaway will be at the station house at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The State policeman will be at the Takoma Park substation Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock to inspect cars. It is believed that for various reasons there are a number of county residents who have not had their cars inspected and the official sticker placed on their windshield. It is hoped that every car in the county will be equipped with an "inspected" sticker before the general order to arrest those not so equipped is issued by Commissioner Baughman.

Sergt. Leroy Rodgers, in charge of the Bethesda substation, is making preparations to have an inspection at his substation in the near future and expects to announce the inspection date within a few days.

J. Lloyd Whipp, of Rockville, has been appointed night station clerk at police headquarters in Rockville by the Board of County Commissioners. He has assumed his new duties. Whipp formerly was a member of the police force at Union Station in Washington and was a deputy sheriff in Montgomery County for several years. His appointment releases a member of the force from office duty for road work.

The employes of the treasurer's office at Rockville are working on the preparation of bills for the State and county taxes which became due July 1 and expect to have the 18,000 bills for personal property and securities in the mail by August 1. Approximately 9,000 bills for special taxes in special taxing areas are well under way and are expected to be mailed within a short time.

The more than 13,000 bills for automobile taxes will be prepared after the personal taxes are disposed of. There are about 40,000 bills in all to be prepared and mailed, according to J. Forest Walker, county treasurer. All taxes, except those on automobiles, will draw interest of 6 per cent after September 1, according to Mr. Walker. They may be paid at any of the county banks or at the treasurer's office in Rockville.

Automobile owners will be unable to secure license plates for their automobiles in 1930 until they have paid the tax on the car and have had their application cards perforated by the county treasurer.

MISSING FISHERMAN BELIEVED DROWNED

Baltimorean's Wife Helps Find His Rod and Kit Near Great Falls.

HUNT FOR BODY IS VAIN

Fishing just below Great Falls yesterday, Walter Weaver, 36, of 508 Rose Hill Terrace, Baltimore, is believed to have fallen into the Potomac river and drowned. The body had not been recovered late last night.

Weaver, with his wife, Mrs. Viola Weaver, and their 12-year-old son, Edward, had gone to Great Falls on the Maryland side for a picnic yesterday. While the husband went fishing, the wife and son took a walk. Shortly before 6 o'clock, Mrs. Weaver, worried because her husband had not returned, enlisted the aid of J. L. Shuff and M. C. Fisher, of Great Falls, and began a search for him.

The men found Weaver's fishing rod and kit on a rock a short distance below the falls. After being joined by Douglas Dosh, Montgomery county policeman, they discovered what appeared to be heel marks and evidences of scratching fingers on the moss and rock surface.

The search for the body had to be postponed until today on account of darkness. Mrs. Weaver and her son returned to Baltimore.

Weaver was employed as a chauffeur by W. F. Roberts, of Baltimore.

Board Rules Out Bridge Contract

Virginian Railway Loses Point in Kanawha Span Dispute.

(Associated Press.)

The Virginian Railway failed yesterday in an effort to introduce in evidence at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing a copy of a contract between the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, a New York Central subsidiary, and the Chesapeake & Ohio to construct a bridge across the Kanawha River at Deepwater, W. Va.

J. W. Carmalt, counsel for the Virginian, offered the contract in evidence at a hearing on the Virginian's application to construct a bridge across the Kanawha at Deepwater to connect with the Kanawha & Michigan, operated by the New York Central.

Opposition to admitting the contract as evidence was voiced by Robert Tungstall, attorney for the Chesapeake & Ohio, which is opposing the Virginian's application. He said the contract, which was made in 1910, later was annulled by a court decision. Examiner Molster refused to admit it in evidence.

CITIZENS ARE SPLIT OVER SCHOOL SITE

Prince Georges Committee Is Unable to Agree; Condemnation Urged.

POST FOR MRS. BONNER

Residents of Bradbury Heights and Boulevard Heights have petitioned the board of education of Prince Georges county to condemn a site for the new Bradbury Heights School on the western edge of the Riley property next to Bradbury Heights.

The petition bears the names of 270 signers of the two communities and urges that the new school be erected on what is known as site No. 1 and ardently protests against the proposed erection on the parcel known as site No. 3 on the eastern edge of the property.

The petition says:

"1. The present school, known as Bradbury Heights School, is now located in Bradbury Heights, which is the center of school population of that district;

"2. The Bradbury Heights item was included in the recent bond issue at the solicitation of the Bradbury Heights-Boulevard Heights people in order to replace the present school, which has become grossly inadequate;

"3. The Bradbury Heights-Boulevard Heights section from which the vast majority of the children would be supplied, is separated from the Spaulding-Greater Capitol Heights section by the Riley farm, on which the proposed sites are located;

"4. If the proposed school is built on site No. 3, adjacent to the Spaulding-Greater Capitol Heights section, it would defeat the purpose of the act of the legislature and require the vast majority of the children to go from Bradbury Heights and vicinity across the Riley farm to site No. 3, which would be near only a small percentage of the child population."

Purchase of the land has been delayed because the building committee can not agree on a site. Half of the committee is from one section and the other half from the other section, and each delegation wishes to have the school located near its own community.

The new school will have eight rooms and will cost approximately $50,000, exclusive of the cost of the site. Sale of the present school building is expected to provide enough funds to care for the purchase of the land. The present building was erected to accommodate 150 children and last year was crowded with 225 pupils.

The new building will accommodate 350 children. It is estimated that there will be approximately 275 enrolled in the school next year, of whom about 35 will be from the District of Columbia, which has no school in that section.

It is hoped to have the new building completed by January or February, in order that the congestion in the present school can be relieved.

Mrs. Olive L. Bonner has been appointed a trustee of the school at Fort Washington by the board of education. Capt. Frank B. Bonner had been appointed to this position, but was unable to accept because of a recent War Department ruling which prohibits Army officers on active duty from accepting civil appointments.

An additional teacher has been authorized for the Riverdale Elementary School because the enrollment there has grown to 350. The new teacher will increase the teaching force to eight.

Superintendent of Schools Nicholas Orem has announced the following vacancies in schools of Prince Georges County: Laurel High School, manual training teacher; Oxon Hill High School, commercial course teacher; Hyattsville High School, manual training teacher and mathematics teacher; Brandywine High School, Latin and English teacher; Seabrook School and Fairy Springs School each have a vacancy for one teacher; Cottage City Graded School, fifth-grade teacher; Takoma Park Elementary, first-grade teacher; Laurel Graded School, fourth-grade teacher; University Park Graded School, a principal.

OBSERVERS DIFFER ON INDUSTRIAL PLAN

Method of Letting Workers Help Govern Plants Is Topic of Dispute.

LOWER EARNINGS CITED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., July 25.—With the completion of the tenth successive year of industrial democracy, a form of plant government carried out by employes of the Riverside and Dan River cotton mills, differences prevail over its efficacy. These have developed largely, it is said, since the short time period set in and the difficulties which reduced earning capacity has brought.

Its proponents say that 95 per cent of the workers participated in the annual election for members of the "house of delegates" a few days ago and that the spirit in which balloting was entered into was proof of its popularity.

The disgruntled faction complains chiefly of the alleged practice in the mills to lop off workers without notice, paying for their services when the time comes to let them go. This element feels that the industrial democracy should legislate against the practice.

At the recent election half the membership of the "house," composed of 123 persons, was elected. The "senate" is composed of department supervisors and "second hands" by virtue of their positions.

During the last year there has been little legislation, and both assemblies are now idle and will not meet again until early in September, when the "house" will elect a "speaker" and the "senate" a presiding officer. At that time H. R. Fitzgerald, president of the textile corporation, will appear and make an address.

Industrial democracy, as promulgated by John Leitch, was brought into being here in 1919. Through the lawmaking bodies working conditions are said to have been improved and the workers have been given a voice in formulating terms of employment.

CANADA TALKS CLOSER COOPERATION ON RUM

Government of the United States on their side of the boundary.

Port Colborne, Ontario, July 25 (Canadian Press).—The largest liquor exporter at Bridgeburg has sold out his entire interests to a Detroit river rum runner, it is authentically reported here. The runner in question owns and has been operating eighteen launches. The reported sale, it is expected, will result in hijacking and other troubles when the Detroit party arrives.

In the meantime, Bridgeburg exporting activities are continuing briskly. All manner of launches, speed boats and motor boats and even skiffs and ordinary row boats comprise the fleet which is carrying on business from the Jarvis street docks there.

United States Coast Guard patrols do not appear to be meeting with much success in checking the exporters and no recent losses to the fleet have been noticed.

$1,500,000 VERDICT FOR U. S. RECORDED

Justice Signs Final Decree in Alleged Fraud Case of J. L. Phillips.

APPEAL FILED AT ONCE

The largest judgment ever obtained in the local courts and the largest ever obtained by the Government through civil action as the result of alleged fraud perpetrated in the operation of a Government contract was recorded in District Supreme Court yesterday when Justice Jennings Bailey signed a final decree in the case of the United States vs. John L. Phillips and others.

Phillips, who resides at Thomasville, Ga., and is a former Republican National committeeman of that State, is held jointly and severally liable to the Government, with other defendants, in the sum of $1,381,447, which, with interest from June 5, 1927, brings the total liability well over $1,500,000.

Other Defendants Noted.

Other defendants and their liability as fixed by the court are: Frank T. Sullivan, of Buffalo, N. Y., $947,610.73; Merchants & Manufacturers National Bank, of Newark, N. J., and Nellie Senft Chambers, executors of George M. Chambers, deceased, $26,068.94; Lottie Eitzen, executrix of Gus Eitzen, deceased; Charles Phillips, jr., brother of John L. Phillips, and Mitchell A. Touart, jr., of Pensacola, Fla., $164,194.25, and Roland Ferry and Lee L. Herrell, of Washington, $68,719.55.

The Fidelity & Deposit Company of Maryland, the bonding company on the contract, is held jointly and severally liable with Phillips to the extent of $500,000, the penal amount of the bond which guaranteed to the Government the faithful performance of the contract.

The court order specifies that liability in each instance save that of Fidelity & Deposit Co. must bear interest from June 7, 1927. In the case of the exception the interest is to begin on March 5, 1923, the date on which the Government filed the original bill of complaint.

Appeal Is Taken.

All defendants noted an appeal from Justice Bailey's decree, and the litigation will now go to the District Court of Appeals.

Supersedeas bonds to stay execution of the judgment pending action of the appellate court are expected to be filed immediately. The court fixed supersedeas bond of Phillips at $1,700,000, of Sullivan at $1,000,000, and of the Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland at $800,000.

The judgment is the result of civil action instituted by the Government after Phillips and Sullivan were acquitted on charges of criminal conspiracy growing out of sales of lumber from Army cantonments following the Armistice. Justice Bailey, in a decision handed down June 3, 1927, held the defendants liable to the Government for the money received from the sales and certified the matter to Herbert L. Davis, special auditor, to reach the total liability. The decree signed yesterday is based on the result of the auditor's findings.

William S. Ward and Marcus Borchardt, special assistants to the Attorney General, represent the Government in the case.

Stimson Will Discuss I'm Alone Arbitrators

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Stimson announced yesterday that he will confer Friday with Canadian Minister Massey regarding the appointment of the American and Canadian arbitrators for the I'm Alone case.

The I'm Alone, a vessel of Canadian registry, was sunk by a Coast Guard vessel during a rum chase in the Gulf of Mexico several months ago. After an exchange of several notes on the question, the two governments decided to submit the matter to arbitration.

Queen Mary Gives Big Garden Party

Dawes Among Guests at Closing of London's Social Season.

London, July 26 (A.P.).—The London social season ended this afternoon after the royal garden party in the gardens of Buckingham Palace, where Queen Mary moved regally among nearly 10,000 guests, among whom were Ambassador and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes.

Only the presence of his majesty King George was needed to complete the brilliant picture of English social life. But the monarch was confined to his sick room.

It was Ambassador Dawes' first royal garden party and he and Mrs. Dawes seemed to enjoy themselves thoroughly.

King Fuad of Egypt, his figure topped by a red fez, presented his chief ministers to Queen Mary. This ceremony took place in the shadow of the old plane tree planted by Queen Victoria in 1887. Prime Minister MacDonald spent most of the afternoon in conversation with Ambassador Dawes. The gist of their conversation was not divulged.

Violet Ray Food Process Patent Is Basis of Suit

Injunction and Accounting Sought by Wisconsin University Group to Protect Method of Protecting Vitamins in Products Under New Scheme.

Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—Suit asking an injunction and accounting for the alleged use of Prof. Harry Steenbock's patented process of irradiating ultra-violet rays in food and pharmaceutical products was filed in Federal District Court today by the Wisconsin Alumni Research Foundation, naming the Solar Research Corporation and Sargent's Drug Store of Chicago as defendants.

The process by which vitamin D is produced in food and drugs was developed by Prof. Steenbock in his research work in the Agricultural Chemistry Department at the University of Wisconsin, through the alumni foundation it was licensed to seven manufacturers for commercial use. The foundation described itself as a nonprofit corporation organized to handle the patents and inventions of university professors.

The suit charged the defendants advertise and sell a product claimed to have been treated with ultra-violet ray. Sam N. Banning, attorney for the Wisconsin alumni, said the two Chicago companies denied using Prof. Steenbock's process, which is the only method thus far developed for production of vitamin D.

Companies properly licensed to use the Steenbock process are the Quaker Oats Co., Fleishmann Co., Mead Johnson Co. of Evansville, Ind.; Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, Ill.; Parke Davis & Co., of Detroit; E. R. Squibb & Son, New York, and Winthrop Chemical Co., of New York.

Protection Lifted From Dog Racing

Officials Are Free to Raid at Will, According to Court Rule.

Chicago, July 26 (A.P.).—Judge George Rush today dissolved a temporary injunction protecting dog race tracks in Cook County from police interference.

Hearing a contempt citation against State's Attorney John A. Swanson, Sheriff John Traeger, Commissioner of Police William E. Russel and several others, Judge Rush held that a court of equity was without power to issue an injunction protecting "questionable enterprises."

He dismissed the citations and refused to allow attorneys for the Hawthorne Track, which was raided both of the last two nights, despite the temporary injunction, to withdraw the petition which brought the matter before him. The injunction was issued by Judge Harry Fisher.

Attorneys for the Hawthorne Track announced they would continue to operate. Word came from the state's attorney's office that raids will continue until dog races with pari-mutuel betting are driven out of business.

WITH ALICE IN WONDERLAND.

Naval disarmament, parity and plans to suspend American cruiser-building were discussed at length yesterday in an Alice-in-Wonderland atmosphere, with Humpty Dumpty's formula on the meaning of words very much in evidence.

In response to a question of whether President Hoover had consulted the Attorney General on the legality of suspending work on cruisers in the face of the navy bill, Secretary Stimson opined that the President's statement should be read carefully. Apparently, the statement does not mean that there is to be any suspension.

The issue in the prolonged fight in the Senate over the cruiser bill was whether a definite program for the construction of steel ships was to be laid down on a time schedule, or whether the program was to be so shaped as to permit the Executive to use the ships in bargaining with foreign powers on naval disarmament. Those who insisted upon a bona fide program of steel ships to protect the country asserted that America was so woefully far behind the British in cruiser strength that completion of the fifteen cruisers could not affect any negotiations on limiting armaments. Statements from Calvin Coolidge to this effect were cited.

Appeals for postponement of the cruiser program were all based on an expressed purpose of giving the Executive an opportunity of using the program in negotiations on naval limitation. The issue was thus joined. It was steel ships and a bona fide program against paper ships and foreign bargaining. By an overwhelming vote Congress smothered the advocates of paper ships and thereby went on record as insisting upon a bona fide building program and forbidding the carrying out of the paper bargaining plan.

Now three of the first five ships under the naval bill are offered on the sacrifice altar to Great Britain in return for a repetition of the old familiar British offer to postpone work on two cruisers which apparently already belong to the postponment department of the Grand fleet.

Mr. Stimson indicated that there had been a misunderstanding of the President's statement about suspending building of cruisers.

It appears that the Navy bill ordering construction of the cruisers is to be followed. But at the same time the President's statement stands—only it has to be carefully read. Incidentally, the President is not attempting to make use of the provision in the bill authorizing suspension in case an agreement on disarmament is reached with foreign powers.

Maybe it is only a question of delaying the keels on the three cruisers until the time is reached under the naval bill to begin work on them. One of the senators who has fought the Navy for years suggests that there may be a trick meaning found to the word "authorize" in the naval bill and that the President might take the position that he is "authorized" to carry out the act of Congress but not "directed" to. But every one was mystified.

Meanwhile, the question of parity came under discussion but not the kind of parity that naval officers talk about. To the naval mind parity means something like equality of naval strength, but that is not the conception in the new era of the Kellogg pact. Parity, it was explained, is not a military doctrine. It is a doctrine of statesmanship. The question seems not to relate to making the two navies equal but to have reference to a proper state of mind.

It was announced that Premier MacDonald had recognized parity and that this was a tremendous step forward. It was realized that the British conceded parity again and again, before breakfast and before dinner, at the ill-fated Geneva naval conference of 1927. But that was different. It was less official. It was announced during negotiations, while the present announcement is made voluntarily and by a Prime Minister.

British humor relieved the tension during the morning discussions of parity in the light of the new stage-setting.

"Of course you have parity," one of the British journalists suggested. "Great Britain gives up nothing. The United States gives up nothing. Parity is preserved."

The American translation was this: "Both the boys are going to throw away a couple of blue prints. The British blue prints are three years old and stale. The American blue prints are not yet printed. That's parity."

DOMESTIC VALUATION.

Sentiment in favor of domestic valuation as a basis for tariff rates is gaining momentum in the Senate finance committee. The matter is being considered in secret session, but a majority of the committee members have let it be known that they favor rewriting the House bill on the basis of American valuation. The House bill retained the foreign valuation plan in spite of the fact that the House sponsored domestic valuation when the present tariff law was written. If the Senate develops an overwhelming sentiment in favor of the domestic plan, it should not be difficult for the House to reverse its present position.

Aside from the fixing of specific duties, the question of valuation is the most important one facing the finance committee. Valuation of imports for tariff purposes is just as important in determining the ultimate protection afforded American industry as the rates themselves. This fact was recognized by President Hoover when in his message to Congress he pointed out the difficulty of detecting undervaluation by foreign manufacturers and virtually asked Congress to furnish the Treasury with a sounder basis for valuation. It would be hardly less logical to allow importers to fix the tariff rates than to permit them to value their own products. If the tariff bill is finally written on that basis, its protective value will be seriously diminished by further trimming of export prices.

The American valuation plan, as sponsored by the House in 1922, provides for ad valorem rates applicable to the American selling price of domestic merchandise with which the imported product is comparable. It is the United States plan which levies duties according to the actual selling price of the foreign article in this country that appears to have found favor with the finance committee. In determining the selling price here, tariffs collected would, of course, be deducted. Neither method is new nor untried. Both are in use under the present tariff bill, but only as alternatives to the foreign valuation scheme, except for minor schedules. If the proposal before the finance committee is adopted, domestic valuation will become the rule and not the exception. Senator Watson, Republican leader, has expressed belief that four-fifths of the items in the present bill can be treated on the basis of United States valuation.

Chief opposition to domestic valuation has come from those who are opposed to tariff increases. They assume, for the purpose of argument, that the change would result in a blanket increase in duties. Adoption of domestic valuation, however, would mean only that Congress would have to interpret the existing rates in new terms. The tariff commission and other agencies have already been asked for data on which to base a realignment. The only cases in which domestic valuation would result in higher duties would be where foreign importers have been in the habit of cheating the United States Treasury and American industry through undervaluation.

On the other hand, the ultimate result of domestic valuation should be to lower tariff rates. Many of the schedules now appear unnecessarily high because foreign goods are grossly undervalued. When rates are written on the actual selling price they will not need to be so high as formerly to afford the same protection. And the country will be saved from the necessity of building its tariff wall ever higher to meet the growing adeptness of foreign producers to dig under it. Protection can never be scientific and complete until this country assumes control of valuation as well as rates.

In all cities, the left-hand turn is the most troublesome vehicular maneuver with which traffic authorities have to contend. The principal traffic movement is in two directions, namely, north and south and east and west, with angular traffic falling generally into one or the other classification. It is when traffic changes from one direction to the other that trouble arises, and it is in the left-hand turn that traffic lanes inevitably must be crossed. The problem of controlling the left-hand turn resolves itself into one of guiding vehicles into a maneuver that blocks off as few as possible of the east and west or north and south lanes. That the Washington left-hand turn does this can not be denied.

Certain valid criticism against the Washington left-hand turn has been raised. The fact that it is not required in all intersections is a drawback, nor does it seem that the existing turn would be satisfactory in uncontrolled intersections. Furthermore, the turn blocks off right-turning traffic and clogs intersections. Careful and unprejudiced consideration of the Washington turn, as compared with the so-called Hoover turn, however, must lead to the conclusion that it is the better in theory. In the Washington turn there are far fewer potential danger points than there are in the Hoover turn. Nevertheless, Traffic Director Harland is to be commended for intimating that he will recommend the abandonment of the Washington turn if he becomes convinced that local motorists so desire. After all, traffic regulations are designed primarily to promote safety and expedite movement, but secondarily to assist rather than to annoy motorists. But the local turn should not be abandoned except for a more satisfactory turn, and the Hoover turn does not fall in this classification.

As a compromise, the so-called Philadelphia, or Chicago, left-hand turn has merit. It recognizes the three general movements of traffic by providing three lights, green, red and amber, upon the latter of which the whirlpool movement of traffic changing directions is inaugurated and completed. Left-turning traffic passes short of the center button upon the amber light and awaits the signal to turn in the center of the street. This is an eminently satisfactory turn. It affords protection to both vehicular traffic and pedestrians and should be substituted in Washington for the present turn.

THE POPE EMERGES.

The emergence of Pope Pius XI from the Vatican marks a happy consummation of the accord with the Italian government. For almost 60 years the Popes have been voluntary prisoners in the Vatican in protest against the seizure of Rome by Victor Emmanuel II to complete the union of Italy. Rome and the rest of the papal state was annexed to the new Kingdom of Italy by plebiscite in 1870. The Pope was allowed possession of the Vatican, the Lateran palaces and the Villa of Castel Gandolfo, and each successive pontiff has confined himself to the Vatican.

When Pope Pius' brilliant procession passed through the territory just acquired by the new papal state on Thursday, the event was hailed as one of the greatest in the history of the Roman Catholic Church for a century. It is estimated that 250,000 persons greeted the pontiff as he made his exit. As a preliminary event the Pope gave an audience to visiting seminarians. It is significant that as his own confinement came to an end he urged the young clerics to extend their knowledge beyond ecclesiastical subjects to all branches of thought.

The arrangement to which the Popes have been subject since the creation of Italy has been unsatisfactory to both the church and the government. Now the Pope is again a sovereign, though his territory is small. He is free to leave the Vatican whenever he desires. His first departure is indeed a significant event which brings satisfaction to Catholics throughout the world.

A black bear, pet of a Midwesterner, attacked and seriously injured its owner after she had given him a bottle of pop, but under certain circumstances a bottle of pop is enough to make any one fighting mad.

Down in Richmond, a pistol bullet performed a perfect appendectomy. The pistol technique, however, is not guaranteed.

ARMY COSTS

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

President Hoover's statement that "the hope of tax reduction lies in large degree in our ability to economize on the military and naval expenditure" brings the matter of Army costs into an unwonted prominence. It is generally conceded that all possible efforts should be made toward international agreements for naval reduction, thereby effecting major savings in the field of national defense. It is not the general impression that appreciable amounts could be saved by any further paring down of the Army establishment.

The Army has already been cut to the proportions of a national police force. It consists largely of skeletonized contingents. Its strength is 118,000 enlisted men and 12,000 officers. By any standards of proportion excepting the cost, it may be regarded as the smallest national force of its kind in the world.

Perhaps we are paying too much for our small Army. It is not improbable that economies might be made in certain particulars. President Hoover's intention to find out will be generally approved. There can be no valid quarrel with his plan "to set up within the general staff a commission of leading Army officers to reconsider our whole Army program, to see what services and other outlays have become obsolete through advancement of science and war methods and what developments can be well spread over longer periods in view of the general world outlook and at the same time maintain completely adequate preparedness."

But while every one is in favor of all possible economies and elimination of wasteful expenditures, the comparison between the military establishment of the United States and those of other nations on the basis of costs is not a valid one. For little more than it costs to maintain an American Army of 130,000 France can maintain an army of half a million. Japan can run an army of 220,000 for about $85,000,000 a year; the American pay roll alone for a force almost 100,000 smaller amounts to $133,000,000.

It is proper, as President Hoover observes, that "the American people should understand that current expenditures on strictly military activities of the Army and Navy constitute the largest military budget of any nation in the world today and at a time when there is less real danger of extensive disturbance to peace than at any time in more than half a century."

But it should also be understood that the American Army and Navy cost much more in proportion than those of other nations and that relative strength can by no means be measured by relative expenditures.

Efforts to check the constantly rising Army costs in the United States are another matter and are commendable. So is the elimination of wasteful expenditures. There are many "political forts" in the country which are of doubtful value. But they are maintained because certain senators and representatives are interested in them, and it is difficult to get Congress to vote them out. The Cavalry and the Coast Guard are held by many to be virtually obsolete. But it would be extremely difficult to abolish them and rather unpopular. All things considered, there seems little possibility of any large reduction in Army costs. The checking of routine Army and Navy costs has a proper place in systematic development. But it is a relatively secondary matter.

A MAN IN HIS GARDEN.

Oh, he is friendly to the rose!
At eve I saw him with the hose
Watering the thirsty plants which stay
Beneath the burning sun all day.
I do not know his name or place,
I did not even see his face;
But this, while passing by, I learned,
For beauty he is much concerned.
Others may think him stern and cold,
Greedy and coarse and over-bold;
But I, who saw him watering flowers,
Know how he spends his evening hours.
I know a little garden where
The plants receive his tender care,
Where roses, at the long day's end,
Wait for the coming of their friend.

Threats Won't Keep the Boys From Smoking if the Old Man Smokes.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ONE of the old McGuffey readers contained a story about a farmer whose ox was gored by a neighbor's bull.

He knew the neighbor would try to evade responsibility, so he twisted the facts and reported the tragedy falsely.

"Neighbor," said he, "my bull gored your ox so that it died. What are we going to do about it?"

"That is a simple matter," said the neighbor; "you shall pay me the value of the ox."

"Fair enough," said the farmer. "But it was your bull that gored my ox. Now what do you say?"

Prejudiced men see the thing they wish to see and reason can not affect them; but when a just and reasonable man is unable to decide what is right and fair, he can settle the matter by the simple expedient of placing the shoe on the other foot.

Consider this matter of prohibition—not the wrong or right of it, but the unfairness of its application.

Whether the law is good or bad, all men agree that discrimination and unfairness and hypocrisy on the part of the law's servants hinder enforcement and encourage rebellion.

If certain officials of the United States were permitted to operate gambling houses in violation of law, there would be instant and indignant protest from all the people.

If that ox were gored, everybody could see the unfairness of it.

Yet officialdom goes at the business of enforcement with a clear conscience while our embassies abroad keep and serve liquor as they did before prohibition.

A United States embassy, wherever it may be, is United States territory—and is so regarded by international law and common sense. To keep and serve liquor on the premises is equivalent to keeping and serving liquor in the White House.

Tricksters may argue that our ambassadors when in Rome must do as the Romans do to avoid giving offense, but that logic would require the ambassador in Turkey to keep a harem.

The bitter truth is we have one law for the rich and one for the poor—one law for officials and another for mere citizens—and until we find the courage and honor to face that truth and change conditions, every effort to teach respect for law will be futile.

We have long been familiar with "jackals" in politics, and have frequently been asked to mourn over the unhallowed deed of political "ghouls." LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Presidential Aspirants Should Expect Speculation as to Their Availability.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to take issue with Gov. Roosevelt of New York on the question of presidential candidates. It appears that the governor resents the continued speculation as to his presidential possibilities, and has announced that he is not a candidate. If he has made up his mind not to enter the race for the Democratic nomination in 1932, he is justified in taking such a position. Otherwise it seems that his objections are not well-founded.

A man who aspires to the Presidency can not hide himself under a bushel until the day before the nominating convention is held and expect to win approval of the people. Prospective candidates must expect to be a good deal in the public eye. Otherwise they are not qualified to serve, because they have not attained the confidence of the people. The public is justified in speculating at any time as to who the next candidates will be. That is one of the prices exacted of citizens whom it chooses to honor. Any man who is irked by the mention of his name in such a connection may find the public irked by the mention of his name when he is ready to have himself considered.

HENRY ALLEN VOSNER.

Canadian Population Does Not Show a Normal Increase.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I take the liberty of calling your attention to the population estimate of the Dominion of Canada Bureau of Statistics for 1929. Canada's apparent shrinkage of population was the cause of a heated debate in Parliament a few months ago, and, if I am not mistaken, you commented on the subject editorially. The recent figures confirm the previous report that Canada is falling short of a normal increase.

The bureau of statistics credits Canada with a total population of 9,796,000 on June 1 this year. This is an increase of 138,000 over the previous year. The increase for the past eight years is estimated at more than 1,000,000 persons. I have no accurate statistics on the birth rate for Canada, but assume that it is approximately the same as for the United States. I apply a rate of 20 births per 1,000 persons, the increase last year should have been more than 185,000. The actual growth of population fell 47,000 below a normal increase without considering immigration. It is not surprising that Parliament is concerned over the situation.

What chiefly concerns the United States is what portion of this shrinkage of population is represented in the rush across the border of immigrants who have been previously admitted to Canada?

Suspension of Cruiser Construction Would Be in Defiance of the Expressed Will of the People.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Allow me to express my approval of your editorial on the "Kellogg Pact." Truly the President cannot be planning to exceed his authority by suspending cruiser construction as ordered by our Congress. This would be an act in direct defiance of the Constitution. It would be an infringement by the Executive upon the legislative branch.

An exchange of views between Premier MacDonald is not an agreement between governments on limitation of naval armament. The authority of our Congress must be given by vote. Then, and not until then, can cruiser building be suspended.

Our wise forefathers gave us three branches of government to curtail power in any one of the three. We voters demanded that the cruiser bill pass, and we voters will demand its provisions be carried out in conformity with our wishes—and in full agreement with our Constitution.

Survey the Mosquito Nuisance and Destroy Potential Breeding Places!

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: By all means let a survey of the mosquito nuisance be made at once. Enjoyment of the many parks in Washington is seriously diminished because of the prevalence of these pests. Elimination of many marsh areas has improved conditions, it is true, but efforts should continue until the mosquito has been completely exterminated.

The fact that the National Capital is infested with mosquitos is not at all complimentary. It is well known that mosquitoes can be exterminated by destruction of their breeding places. Most urban communities are able to entirely free themselves from this nuisance in that way. Why can not Washington? Allow me to urge that all citizens cooperate with the Public Health Service by removing any potential breeding places on private property.

Threlkeld School.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With reference to your editorial on the portable schools, and much similar material that has appeared from time to time, it appears either that it is a case of portables or part-time with elementary school children in Washington.

That being the case, why was the Threlkeld School at Thirty-sixth street and Prospect avenue abandoned this year? It is a two-story and basement brick building, built only in 1868. Up on Q street is an old house, recently bought by the Colonial Dames for their national headquarters, built at least 100 years before the Threlkeld School. With proper care and repair, it is an ornament to the District. Yet school people have moved out of this relatively new building, and there it stands, a dog in the manger, rendering nothing to the community and preventing this important corner from being useful to any other agency.

Several Latin-American Envoys Will Speak at Charlottesville.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE group of distinguished Washingtonians, who are to take part in the sessions of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia from August 4 to 17, is growing apace. Several of the Latin-American envoys are to be included as speakers, since the agenda of the conference, concerned principally with internal affairs, has been extended to include matters of moment in Pan-American relations.

Mr. Wade Hampton Ellis will be one of the widely heralded speakers, presumably with law enforcement as his subject. In a radio address a few weeks ago he propounded the theory of putting prohibition enforcement up to the States, much as it was later presented in Mr. George W. Wickersham's now famous letter to Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, which started no end of discussion when read before the recent governors' conference. Mr. Ellis' plan has been the subject of much editorial discussion, much of it favorable as to its content and practically all enthusiastic as to its manner of presentation.

Mrs. Ellis will accompany her husband to Charlottesville. Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Frank R. McCoy will be among the other Washingtonians attending the Institute of Public Affairs, and also in the group will be Mr. William C. Deming, Civil Service Commissioner; Mrs. E. Rust-Smith, who will contribute to the round-table discussion of the province of the country church, and Miss Evelyn Weems. Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie is registrar for the conference.

Gen. McCoy has been asked to speak on Nicaragua. He was head of the American commission to supervise the elections, which eventually put an end to the revolution in the little Central American Republic. The Minister of Nicaragua, Dr. Juan B Sacasa, who was leader of one of the contending factions, is also to be speaker at the Institute and other distinguished Latin Americans to be featured are the Minister of Panama, Dr Ricardo J. Alfaro, and Dr. Fernando Gonzales Roa, Mexican representative on the Commission of Inquiry and Conciliation of Paraguay and Bolivia—informally known as the "Chaco Commission"—which is now sitting in Washington and of which Gen McCoy is the chairman. Dr. Roa will discuss Mexican affairs.

Dr. Sacasa, who threatened to leave Washington all too soon after his arrival because of the high cost of being a diplomat, has happily reconsidered. His government refused to accept his resignation, tendered because, having no private fortune, he found life in Washington too expensive. He had planned a holiday in Europe, but has decided to stay on here instead now that he is retaining his diplomatic post, although Senora de Sacasa will go abroad shortly.

Members of the Philippine Commission, which has been holding forth in Washington for several months, will take part in the institute program, as will Senor Osaias, the Philippine resident commissioner, and Senora de Osaias. This clever and charming little lady will read a paper on "The Women of the Philippines." The commissioners, all of whom are to be speakers, are Senor Rafael Alunan, secretary of agriculture for the Philippines; Senor Manuel Roxas, speaker of the House, and a former speaker, Senor Sergio Osmena.

Mrs. John Alan Dougherty will be the guest of Mrs. W. Harry Brown at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., for a week, when the racing season opens early in August. Mrs. Dougherty will go to New York Saturday, where Mrs. Brown, who is spending the summer on the North Shore, will meet her and they will motor to Saratoga.

The Financial Attache of the French Embassy, Mr. Robert Lacour-Gayet, has returned to his apartment Wardman Park Hotel, for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Brosseau will arrive today in New York after spending several weeks in Europe and will go to Bellevue, their home at Greenwich, Conn. They went to Amsterdam for the convention of the International Chamber of Commerce and since then have been motoring through the chateau country of France. Mrs. Brosseau expects to come to Washington in mid-August.

Burning Tree Club Popular Rendezvous

Summer Bachelors Foregather Daily on Links.

The Burning Tree Club, on the River road in nearby Maryland—often called the "millionaires club," because of the group of wealthy and prominent men who started it—is a favorite rendezvous for a number of Washington's summer bachelors. The course is the choice of the "better golfers," not only because of its excellence, but because, according to the rulings of the club, ladies are not permitted to play it. In fact they are banned from the club at nearly all times, and proud may be the ones who can boast of having dined in those forbidden precincts.

The former Secretary of State, Mr. Frank B. Kellogg, who is a golf enthusiast of the first order, was seen almost daily at the club and was never absent from those noteworthy breakfasts at which cabinet officers, senators, representatives and other prominent persons gather early every Sunday morning. Between bantering and golf witticisms many an affair of state is tossed about and left unsolved when the golfers betake themselves to the links. It is not improbable that Mr. Kellogg found a few hours during his recent and important visit in Washington, in which to renew old friendships in a sporty round or two.

The Secretary of Labor, Mr. James J. Davis, who has established his family at Ventnor, N. J., for the summer but is in town frequently, never misses a chance to join his friends at the club. The Alien Property Custodian, Mr. Howard Sutherland, with Senator Pat Harrison, Mr. John Marshall, former assistant Attorney General; Mr. Robert V. Fleming, Mr. Harry Wardman and a few others, is usually to be found on the Burning Tree links, these pleasant summer days.

Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the Secretary of State, left yesterday to return to their summer home on Long Island. Mrs. Stimson has been in town for the last week supervising some changes at Woodley, which is to be her home.

Among those lunching at the Carlton yesterday were the Ambassador of Cuba, Senor Don Orestes Ferrara, the Minister of Persia, Mirza Davoud Khan Meftah; the First Secretary of the Bolivian Legation, Senor Don George de la Barra, and Representative Luhring.

Undersecretary Mills Expected at Newport.

Mr. Ogden L. Mills, Undersecretary of the Treasury, is expected at Newport aboard his yacht, Alcada, for the week-end. Mrs. Mills is spending the summer at their villa, Oceanview.

The Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy, Mr. Arthur J. Pack, has returned to his apartment at the Anchorage after vacation of several months at his home in England.

Mr. John Marshall will leave tomorrow by motor for Rehoboth Beach, Del., where Mrs. Marshall and their sons, Mr. John Marshall, jr., and Mr. Poul Marshall, have been for a month. Mr. Marshall will remain until the first of September. Mrs Marshall will not return until later in the month when their elder son will resume his studies at Amherst and the younger boy his high school course in Washington.

Senor George de la Barra, first secretary of the Bolivian Legation, entertained at dinner last evening at the Plage Deauville at Wardman Park Hotel. Others having guests there were Mr. Alexander Wende and Mr. J C. Marshall.

Former Senator Richard P. Ernst is here from Kentucky and entertained at luncheon yesterday on the Willard roof. Col. Michael Gallagher and his daughter, Miss Helen Gallager, had guests lunching with them, as did Mr. George E. Hamilton and Mr. Edward T. Clark.

Mrs. Van Auken Mills is spending the summer at Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., where she has gone for many seasons.

Mrs. Alfred J. Maxwell, wife of Maj. Maxwell, and her daughter, Margaret, are visiting Mrs. Maxwell's sister, Miss Mae Mansell, in Lancaster, N. Y. Upon their return on August 1 they will reopen their apartment in the Colonial.

Mr and Mrs. Frederick DeCourcy Faust, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Gertrude Faust, are occupying their cottage at Watch Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Carrell, Dale Carrell, jr., and Mrs. Gertrude Hoff, of Keokuk, Iowa, have motored to Washington and are at the Grace Dodge Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Codel, Miss Gertrude Upton, Mr. Mortimer Duperow, and Miss Agnes Peterson, all of Washington, are at the Jasper Park Lodge, Jasper Park, Alberta, Canada.

Miss Carolyn H. Boon and Miss Dorothy Boon, of Roanoke, are staying at the Grace Dodge Hotel.

Mrs. P. P. McManus and her daughter, Miss May McManus, have returned to Washington after a tour of Canada and the Great Lakes. They have taken an apartment at Wardman Park Hotel.

Foreign Corps In Capital to Be Augmented

Union of South Africa Will Authorize Minister to United States.

The White House may soon have to increase the size of its dining table When the chiefs of diplomatic missions are entertained at dinner there each year, with their wives, the company so nearly fills the State dining room that few outsiders can be included. And now, apparently, the size of the corps is to be further increased.

At a meeting of the Assembly of the Union of South Africa, held in Capetown, a measure has been introduced, providing for the sending of ministers plenipotentiary to Washington, Rome and The Hague.

It was only a few years ago that the British Ambassador and his group of aides did all the representing in Washington for the empire and her colonies. But first Egypt was given its own envoy. Then the Irish Free State won her "independence" in the diplomatic world. Then Canada sent to Washington her envoy. And soon one is expected to arrive from Capetown.

Moreover, although apparently no official steps have been taken to that end, there is likely one day to be an Ambassador—or Minister—from the Vatican to the United States. Senator Tom Heflin will probably have apoplexy when the matter is formally broached, but it would involve no departure from precedent for the United States maintained a diplomatic representative at the Vatican for over 20 years, the mission only coming to an end when the Pope lost his temporal power, now restored by the Italian government. There is, of course, already an apostolic delegate in Washington. Archbishop Fumasoni-Biondi, but he has no relations with the United States Government and is the liaison officer between the Holy See and the Catholic Church in America.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Ruth will entertain informally this evening at their home in Brandywine street, Chevy Chase, in celebration of their twenty-sixth wedding anniversary Mr. and Mrs. Ruth have made their home in Washington for many years Mr. Ruth being an official of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Before her marriage Mrs. Ruth was Miss Della Jarvis.

Miss Carmela Merolla, of New York, who will sail for Italy in August, will be the guest of Miss Frances Held at her home in Lanier place for the week-end.

AIR CIRCUS WILL AID LEGION DRUM CORPS

Parade Over City, Races, Stunts, Parachute Jumps Given Tomorrow.

TO CARRY PASSENGERS

An air circus with all the trimmings will be given to the people of Washington at Hoover Field tomorrow by Costello Post, American Legion, officers of the post announced yesterday. The circus will include an air parade over the city, races, stunts and parachute jumps.

According to the announcement, the circus will begin at o'clock in the morning with an air parade. Returning to the field, the planes will carry passengers from 9:15 until 10 o'clock, at which time a short lecture on "Why an Airplane Flies" will be given.

At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon the circus proper will begin, with races, stunts and parachute jumps. The planes will be flown by C. W. Carneal, H. S. Behr, and Roger Scott, Hoover Field pilots, and one parachute jump will be made by Miss Jerry Runion, Washington girl, who has achieved considerable prominence as a parachute jumper.

A feature of the circus, according to Scott, who is operations manager of the field, will be a race between two Aeromarine Klemm monoplanes. These are used at the field for primary training and are not expected to show the speed usually associated with racing airplanes.

The afternoon program will be repeated at 6 o'clock. The circus is being given in an effort to obtain funds for uniforms to be worn by the Drum and Bugle Corps at the Louisville convention in September. Everything will be free, however, it was said, except the flights over Washington.

Dr. Healy Ready For Holland Trip

Will Sail Today for Lectures Before Law Academy at The Hague.

Dr. Thomas H. Healy, assistant dean of the Georgetown School of Foreign Service, will attend the international congress for commercial education in Amsterdam in September as a delegate of the United States appointed by the State Department. He is sailing today for Holland to give a series of lectures before the famous Academy of International Law at The Hague prior to the convening of the educational congress.

This is the second year that Dr. Healy has been appointed a lecturer at The Hague. He is the youngest American ever to lecture before that distinguished academy, which draws its student body from more than 50 foreign countries.

He will join the delegates of the Institute of International Law who will sail for New York September 30 to hold their first sessions in this country. Dr. James Brown Scott, noted internationalist, who is chairman of the graduate committee of the Georgetown school, is the first American chosen president of the institute. He is going abroad to greet the delegates and return with them to this country for their New York sessions. Dr. Healy has been appointed American secretary for the conference.

of governors, opinions expressed by these spokesmen are held logically to be minimized.

It is generally regretted that such a situation as confronts organized motordom in this respect exists, for it is felt that the opinion of the more than 20,000 members of the local motor club would be of tremendous importance in the satisfactory settlement of constantly arising problems. Given the opportunity to express their sentiment on the left-turn rule in The Post's referendum, it is anticipated that A. A. A. members will be among the first to take advantage of it.

District authorities other than Traffic Bureau officials are satisfied with "the show-down" vote on the long-agitated left turn question.

Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty, commenting upon the referendum yesterday, declared it was his practice to accept the recommendations of department heads and that if the sentiment of the public is such that Traffic Director William H. Harland suggests a change in the present rule, he will be disposed to ratify it.

In the meantime, Washington goes ahead voting on the much-agitated issue.

REAL ESTATE MEN DEFEND LAND DEAL

Showalter and Associates Deny Illegal Action in Property Sale.

ANSWER COURT ORDER

John B. Showalter, a local real estate operator, and his associates, Alexander G. Campbell and Luther A. Bennett, filed answer yesterday in District Supreme Court to a court order requiring them to show cause why they should not be adjudged in contempt for alleged concealment of the value of property of an estate which they represented as agents.

Showalter and his associates were charged in the petition on which the court order was taken with suppressing a $6,000 offer for a piece of property, obtaining a court order permitting sale of the property to Campbell for $3,400, and later conveying it to the prospective purchaser for $6,000.

In their answer, Showater, Campbell and Bennett admit that the property was bought and sold as alleged, but assert that the $6,000 bid was first made known to an attorney for the estate which they were serving as real estate agents. This offer was refused by the attorney who said the money must be paid in cash as it was needed to pay off debts of the estate. The answer declares that the $6,000 offer was based on a first payment of $200 and the balance at the rate of $35 per month. After the attorney refused the $6,000 offer the purchase of the property by Campbell was arranged, the answer says. It also sets out that while $6,000 is a fair price for the property on terms that $3,400 was a reasonable and fair cash price for an immediate sale.

Showater and his associates are represented by the law firm of Leckie, Cox and Sherier.

John A. Bell Paroled In Bank Crash Case

Pittsburgh, July 25 (A.P.).—John A. Bell, one-time millionaire coal operator and banker, who has been serving a six-year sentence for wrecking his Carnegie, Pa., Trust Co., was paroled in criminal court here today. Bell, once a candidate for United States Senator, had served two years.

Bell, now broken financially and physically, is 75 years old, but he still has the intention of "making good and paying back every cent I owe." The Carnegie crash involved millions of dollars. Shortly after his trial, Bell suffered paralytic strokes and his two years' imprisonment have been passed in a hospital.

Sugar is the body's fuel in this

ACTIVE Age

Include sugar in the diet for energy and its supreme flavor.

SUGAR is literally the human power that runs this busy age. What an active age it is! Watch the growing number of playgrounds, tennis courts, swimming pools and golf courses. Study the quick movement of people in the streets and at their work. Observe the change in styles that permits free and active movement of the limbs. This is the age of sport and business activity.

Sugar is the first line of energy for moving, active human beings. Day in and day out sugar is the most prominent fuel burned in the body. Scientists tell us that on a day of added exertion or increased exhaustion the sugar of the diet should be increased.

Sugar is not only the preferred fuel of the body. It is nature's supreme flavor for seasoning other healthful foods. For enjoyment in eating, add a dash of sugar to cereals and fruits. Cook vegetables with a dash of sugar for improved color and flavor. At the end of the meal eat chocolate or cocoanut cakes, ice cream, candies, or some other satisfying dessert. The Sugar Institute.

DELEGATES TO RIO CALL UPON HOOVER

Senator Oddie Among Officials to Attend Highway Congress Next Week.

PLAN GOOD-WILL TOUR

Following the second Pan-American Congress of Highways to Rio de Janeiro from August 16 to 31, delegates from the United States plan to confer with officials of various Latin-American nations on problems of highway construction and finance, it was announced yesterday by J. Walter Drake, chairman, after an audience with President Hoover.

Matters of survey, determination of route and financing of the proposed inter-American highway, designed to link North and South American nations, will be among the prime topics, both for the congress itself and for the subsequent conferences, and it is on these subjects that the President is believed to have dwelt during his reception to the delegation yesterday.

Among those who will go to Rio with Mr. Drake, sailing tomorrow from New York aboard the Munson liner Western World, and who called on the President yesterday, are Senator Tasker L. Oddie, of Nevada; Representative Cyrenus Cole, of Iowa; Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads; Frank T. Sheetz, chief highway engineer for Illinois; H. H. Rice, treasurer, National Automobile Chamber of Commerce; Frederic A. Reimer, president of the American Road Builders' Association, and Pyke Johnson, executive secretary of the delegation, who occupies a similar position with the Pan-American Confederation for Highway Education.

After the conference at Rio, the delegates plan to reverse the order of President Hoover's good-will tour. From Rio they will proceed to Santos, Sao Paulo, Brazil; Montevideo, Uruguay; Buenos Aires, Argentina; Santiago and Valparaiso, Chile; Lima, Peru; Panama, Colombia and Venezuela, retuning to the United States by November 1.

19 Routed From House By Deadly Acid Fumes

St. Louis, July 25 (A.P.).—Nineteen persons residing in a three-story apartment house were routed and sent scurrying to the street early today by sulphuric acid fumes following explosion of a tank of acid mixture connected with a refrigerating machine in the basement.

Mrs. Walter Wind, who resided in a first-floor apartment directly above the basement compartment, said she was awakened by the explosion at 3:30 a. m. She aroused her husband and their 7-year-old daughter. Wind awakened other residents of the building as he hurried out with his wife and child. The building was vacated in a short time.

Man Freed in Slaying Of Father's Assailant

Hattiesburg, Miss., July 25 (A.P.).—After less than two hours' deliberation, a circuit court jury last night freed Roy Carter from a charge of murdering W. H. ("Bill") King, local filling station owner, as the climax of an all-day gambling game on May 27.

Carter testified that he fired the fatal shots at King as the latter was bending over his father, Mac Carter, after shooting him with a rifle. The defendant said he shot King once, and as the wounded man swayed, but failed to drop his rifle, he shot him the second time in an effort to save his father's life.

New York Tunnel Plans Are Voted $5,000,000

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—The board of estimate today voted a $5,000,000 fund for preparation of plans for two tunnels, the ultimate total cost of which will be $175,000,000.

One, to cost $100,000,000, will dissect Manhattan Island from east to west at Thirty-eighth street and continue under the East River into Brooklyn and Queens. The other will be a tube from the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn under the Narrows to Staten Island, to be built at a cost of $75,000,000.

Instructor Killed By 'Unloaded' Gun

Capt. W. S. Kieb, Teacher of Life Saving, Wounded at Demonstration.

Allentown, Pa., July 25 (A.P.).—Capt. William Kieb, widely known life saving instructor and field representative of the American Red Cross, was fatally wounded here today while demonstrating to local police the method of getting away from a man holding a pistol to one's back. The revolver being used in the demonstration, thought to have been unloaded, contained a bullet.

Patrolman Warren Ander was holding the revolver. Kieb told him to pull the trigger as he executed the maneuver he was demonstrating, and the bullet penetrated Kieb's spine at the small of the back.

Kieb fell to the floor, but did not lose consciousness, and directed the ambulance men who took him to a hospital, where he died an hour after his arrival.

Capt. Kieb was in this city to give a life saving demonstration before the local Kiwanis Club. Kieb gave life saving demonstrations throughout the Eastern section of the United States.

MT. RAINIER ARRESTS ARE HELD AS ILLEGAL

State's Attorney So Rules and Hits Town's Actions.

Arrests of autoists in violation of the Maryland automobile laws have been made over a period of the last three years in Mount Rainier, according to a report made by E. Austin Baughman, Baltimore, commissioner of motor vehicles, to the State's attorney general yesterday. The investigation was conducted following rumors that the town authorities had been maintaining a speed trap.

Baughman's report also charged that the court costs assessed offenders amounted to $3.75 each instead of the $1.45 which the State permits.

The attorney general was requested to notify the Prince Georges County authorities that the township officials had been violating the motor vehicle laws and to take such action as is possible against the mayor, city council and chief of police.

The inquiry revealed, according to the report, that a special set of ordinances, not in accord with the State auto laws, had been enforced in Mount Rainier since September 20, 1926. It further showed that Eugene Plummer, police chief, had been using a motorcycle since June 1, this year, to catch motorists and had been accepting collateral at the roadside.

The motor vehicle commission will continue its investigation, Baughman said, to ascertain the disposal of the collateral obtained in this manner and also fines levied by local magistrates before whom motorists were taken instead of to the Hyattsville branch of Prince Georges County Police Court, the proper place for trial.

Discovers How We Think

LOUIS W. RAPEER.

Dr. Louis W. Rapeer, of the Researchlight Service here, has been working for twenty years on how people think in solving their life problems and announces in a recent bulletin the result of his researches. He has discovered not only how people use their minds in thinking and how they should use them to get the best results in meeting their difficulties, but he has devised a technic by which to train people to reason scientifically and effectively.

Schools and colleges have failed to train people to think systematically on their serious problematic situations, because teachers have not known how the mind acts and how it must be guided. By this simple technic experimentially worked out over many years, Dr. Rapeer has trained hundreds to think and now offers the method to the world.

Of course, a person can not learn to think by reading a book about thinking any more than he can learn to swim by memorizing a volume on swimming. The Researchlight Service, therefore, offers a short course of guided training that helps you to form the habit of organized problem solving, not on problems set by the Service nor on such as are given in algebra and geometry, but on your own practical difficulties. The Service will send you the method and illustrations of how to think on real difficulties and then will correct the solutions you send in.

Nothing like this training has ever been developed, and the results are remarkable, men and women from many walks of life having taken it with profit—business men, inventors, judges, teachers and homemakers. You may secure full information by writing to the

Listeners Are Guests In Morning

Program Dedicated to WRC at 10:30 Will Be Ceremonious; "Chimes of Normandy" on Station WMAL.

More stations were available last night with less static.

Listeners of WRC will be the guests of honor in the national broadcast of the daytime series, "Evening Stars" at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Marjorie Horton, soprana, and the National Cavaliers, famous radio quartet, will be the featured artists, assisted by the Slumber Hour Orchestra.

With the program dedicated to WRC, that station will be represented in the New York studios by George Hicks, local announcer, who will be master of ceremonies.

Leo O'Rourke, tenor, will be the soloist of the Cities Service Hour at 7 o'clock. The Cavaliers will have a group of typical songs, and Rosario Bourdon, director, has chosen the "Slavonic Dance No. 10" of Dvorak, as the orchestral feature of the program.

"Whispering Tables," the series dealing with events in the New World Cafe on Broome street, where Chinatown crosses the old Bowery, which is the rendezvous of honkytonks, the recreation spot of jazz musicians and the hangout of gangsters, is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock. Studio "props" for local color include fire sirens and police whistles, a machine gun, several automatic revolvers and a host of beer bottles.

Schradertown will turn out in force to attend the trial of Garage Gus at 8:30 o'clock tonight. Gus was caught wrist-deep in the Widow Biddle's jewel box last week, according to the evidence. With Gus freely admitting his guilt and asking only that during his imprisonment he be served cream instead of skimmed milk in his coffee, things look pretty dark for the meek little garage man—until the Widow Biddle breaks the tension with a bit of news.

The Slumber Music program, dedicated to operatic excerpts by Ludwig Laurier, the director, goes on the air at 10 o'clock, as follows:

Overture to "The Impresario," Mozart; selection from "Il Trovatore," Verdi; selection from "The Pearl Fishers," Bizet; and selection from "Martha," Flotow.

Excerpts from Victor Herbert's operetta, "The Fortune Teller," will be played by an orchestra directed by Howard Barlow in the broadcast of Light Opera Gems at 9 o'clock tonight from WMAL. Planquette's "Chimes of Normandy" will be the opening number by a mixed quartet and orchestra, followed by "High Jinks," Friml; "When You Are Away," tenor and orchestra; "Gypsy Love," Lehar, orchestra; "Lover, Come Back to Me," Romberg, soprano and orchestra, and the Drinking Song from "The Student Prince," Romberg, mixed quartet.

The Rollickers, a male quartet, will be heard from WMAL at 7:30 o'clock. "In a Russian Village" and a dance orchestra will provide the entertainment from 9:30 to 11 o'clock.

There will be a program of dinner music from WOL at 5:10 o'clock, followed by Kathryn Dunning, pianist. Hauline Healy Shook and Ivy Stevens, and the "Amos 'n' Andy" broadcast.

The story of the beautiful Barbara Prietchie, as told musically by Sigmund Romberg in his operetta, "My Maryland," will be continued by Jessica Dragonette, Colin O'More, and the supporting cast of Philco's Theater Memories at 8:30 o'clock tonight, from WJZ and WBAL.

Mae Belle Savell (Mrs. Homer Croy), author of several popular books on housekeeping, was born this day, 1886. Her books include "One Thousand Shorter Ways Around the House," "One Thousand Things a Mother Should Know," "One Thousand Hints on Flowers and Birds," "One Thousand Hints on Vegetable Gardening" and a play, "A Red Letter Day." Baby Mine

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"Leo."

IF July 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8 a. m., from 11 a. m. to 12 noon, and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m. The danger periods are from 4 a. m. to 7 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 5:50 p. m.

This day will prove to be favorable for travel, and business efforts promise to be crowned with success. In all other respects it will be rather disappointing, and will not be productive of any degree of happiness or self-satisfaction.

The child born on this day will have many virtues and very few weaknesses. It will be straightforward, honest and intellectual. It will however, be moody, and close companionship with those of a more optimistic disposition will do a lot to eliminate this atmosphere. It will be very affectionate and amenable to environment.

Your versatility and ingeniousness are big factors in your makeup. You can do a variety of things, and, like Admirable Crichton, do them all well. Your talents are as pronounced as they are diversified. You have in you the makings of a very successful person. If you do not become one, it will be because you have lacked perseverance. There is scarcely a single line of endeavor in which you could not shine, if you wished to do so. The signs denote, notwithstanding this fact, that your position will never rise beyond the mediocre, as you scatter your gifts in too many directions.

You, especially if you are a woman, evince more than ordinary interest in all that pertains to the psychical and mystical. This does not mean to imply that you are either credulous or superstitious. You are interested, chiefly as an investigator, and, in spite of your research, have not formed any definite conclusions.

The stars indicate that you will have several love affairs—more or less severe. And you will probably never be quite free from some entanglement with one of the opposite sex. Your married life, while outwardly successful, will be rather uninteresting and dull.

Successful people born July 26:
George Clinton—Statesman.
Theodore Strong—Mathematician.
George Catlin—Artist.
Isaac Babbitt—Inventor.
G. B. Cortelyou—Secretary to President Roosevelt.
George Bernard Shaw—Famous author.

European Broadcast Is Planned

Universal Company Will Try to Arrange Exchange of Programs for U. S.; WCAU May Rebroadcast in Fall.

Dr. Leon Levy, president of the Universal Broadcasting Co., operating WCAU, Philadelphia, and secretary of the Columbia Broadcasting System, will sail for Europe, accompanied by Isaac D. Levy, treasurer of the Columbia Broadcasting System, next Friday. The object of this trip is to make arrangements with several short wave stations in Norway, France and Germany, for the interchanging of programs on a regular schedule.

A short time ago the Universal Broadcasting Co. was granted a construction permit to build a high-powered short-wave transmitter at Byberry, Pa., which is now nearing completion. The call letters for the new station will be W3XAU, and it will operate on two frequencies, 9,590 kilocycles or 31.2 meters, and 6,060 kilocycles, or 49.4 meters. As soon as the station is in operation it will be used exclusively for experimental purposes in the interest of interchanging programs of international importance.

A short time ago the Universal Broadcasting Co. received a letter from Oslo, Norway, asking if it would be possible to make reciprocal arrangements for the interchanging of special programs. They are constructing at the present time a high-power 60KW long-wave transmitter and short-wave transmitter.

Arrangements have been made by Dr. Levy to meet a representative of this company during the latter part of August, and it is expected that final details will be be made so that WCAU will rebroadcast some of their programs in the early fall.

Conferences with the minister of postal affairs in Paris have been arranged to discuss the exchange of programs with French stations.

Preliminary arrangements with several leading German radio stations were opened a short time ago.

WCAU, which acts as key station for the Columbia Broadcasting System on special occasions, will act in this same capacity for the chain in rebroadcasting short-wave programs from foreign countries that are of international importance.

Although many obstacles, such as difference in language and time are seen in the development of this new project, it is expected that these will be overcome. The English language will predominate these programs. The programs broadcast from Philadelphia will be in the mornings, the afternoons being devoted to the reception of foreign stations. This will eliminate the difference of time, which is about five or six hours. The programs that are broadcast on short wave from Philadelphia in the evening will be experiments with reception in Australia, which has a time difference of fifteen hours.

These programs will be picked up on an especially constructed short-wave receiver and fed into various input amplifiers, from there into modulation units and then into the transmitter itself to be rebroadcast on the regular wave of WCAU with 10,000 watts power.

Starting in the early fall, test programs will be conducted and it is hoped that within a month after the start the programs can be put on a regular transmission and reception schedule.

WORK'S BRIDGE

UNQUESTIONABLY there is much less informatory doubling in Contract than in Auction. This is not because the informatory double has less usefulness in the newer game, but because the opportunities for doubling one-bids do not occur so frequently, there being more high original bids in Contract. Another reason is that the penalties in Contract are so severe that the Contract player who is deciding whether to make an informatory double is apt to give more thought to what will happen if his partner has the much dreaded bust than the Auction player is apt to do in a similar situation. However, when an opportunity to make an informatory double does occur in Contract, it is even more valuable than in Auction; and the new game has developed some slight variations in the doubling conventions.

In Auction the rule most generally observed is that a double is informatory if made of a bid of one No Trump or of one, two or three of a suit, providing the partner of the doubler has not previously bid or doubled, and also that the double is made at the player's first opportunity to double. The only recognized exception is the case of an original one No Trump, followed by a bid of two of a suit, and a double by the partner of the No Trumper; in that one case the double is informatory, although the partner of the doubler has previously bid.

In Contract it has been found expedient to extend the scope of informatory doubles and call all the following informatory:

A double of one No Trump, if partner has not bid or doubled.

A double of one or two of any suit, if partner has not doubled. This includes doubles of one or two of a suit after partner has bid either a suit or No Trump.

A double of three of any suit if partner has not bid or doubled.

A free double of four of a minor if partner has not bid or doubled.

It will be noted that in several instances doubles are informatory in Contract where they would be business in Auction; the most important of these cases will be the subject of tomorrow's article.

Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

A smart week-end ensemble, in which the dress is of beige shirting and the coat of matching beige-tweed, with brown leather belt. (Courtesy of the Maison Lyolene, Paris).

THE extreme decolletage of this season's evening gowns has created the need for new types of lingerie—and as usual, when such a need exists, it has promptly been met.

Some of the brassieres we have seen recently, to go with the evening gowns, which leave the back uncovered to the waistline, have been of the most delicate lace, crossing the bust in front and dipping sharply at both sides, to meet in the back in a V below the waistline. Such a design naturally calls for the most careful design and fitting, if it is to stay in position.

Some of the most interesting models we have seen have been chez Berthe Barreiros, a Parisian creator of luxurious lingerie. For example, brassieres of sheer lace over metal cloth, deftly designed so as to hold the bust firmly in front yet leave the back entirely uncovered.

• • • •

Another note in the present evening mode, which also demands special care in the choice of lingeria, is the tight fitting about the hips. This calls for lingerie which will lie perfectly smooth and flat beneath the gown. And Barreiros has met this need in a number of ways.

She shows lovely girdles of printed taffeta with gaily colored flowers on a black background. For those who prefer "panties," she shows charming models of embroidered crepe de chine, cut so as to lie perfectly flat and fit snugly.

A two-piece house dress with a blouse, which has a double front! With a detachable apron, which looks like part of the skirt when on. With, ah-h-h-h, wide culottes, which can be worn with the blouse and no skirt when a couple of hours of real hard work confront you. That is what we have designed for you—address a letter to the Dare Department of The Washington Post and put "House Dress" on the outside of it, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and back will come the illustrated leaflet telling you exactly how to make it!

• • • •

When a week-end dress is of beige shirting, and has a coat of beige tweed—and then has a slip-overable skirt of the tweed—is it not, oh, very worth while to sketch it for you? It is! And so we exactly did.

Clever Fingers Contest!

Anything except recipes! 'Tis not to be limited to sewing, this Clever Fingers Contest we are going to have! Watch for the announcement.

• • • •

This is a summer of lace, without a doubt. And though we are quite familiar with lace frocks edged with tulle, it was Worth's idea to provide the lower part of the tulle dresses with lace flounces. This puts an extra covering over the legs without concealing them, and the general effect is very lovely.

• • • •

A special offer! Only I have to do it myself—that's why you must send a letter addressed "Dare—Personal." And in it inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. I just couldn't help telling you how we redecorated our studio, a whole bagful of little cute tricks I know you will just delight in!

Be sure to read the weekly letter of Dare in the Sunday issue!

Au revoir!

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

BEATING BEDBUGS TO DEATH.

"THE MODERN HOSPITAL" gives the following method of eradicating roaches and bedbugs, and of repelling flies and perhaps also mosquitoes. The recipe for a repellent is as follows:

Cresol, 40 ounces.
Oil of myrbane, 3 ounces.
Kerosene oil, enough to make 8 gallons.

The cost of this mixture, as put together in the drug room of a hospital, is about 35c a gallon. Since each gallon contains about half a pint of cresol and half an ounce of oil of myrbane and almost one gallon of kerosene, there is no great difficulty in figuring costs. The mixing can be done by any one. However, the retail buyer will have to pay more than a hospital does for the ingredients. "The Modern Hospital" says the mixture they recommended has no advantages except that of pride over the products advertised under trade names.

To get rid of bedbugs the mattress, springs and even wooden parts should be placed over paper laid on the floor and beaten with stuffed clubs. Many bugs and eggs can be dislodged. They fall on the paper and can be gathered up and burned. The solution is then poured along the seams and into the corners and cracks and sprayed over surfaces. In the control of roaches the solution is squirted into cracks and other recesses used by the bugs as havens of refuge and places for the eggs. At night the floor and the table tops should be swept clear of table crumbs and then lightly sprayed. The garbage can should be sprayed lightly inside and out and then tightly covered.

To use as a repellent for flies and mosquitoes:

Spray the door and window screens well. Then lightly spray the walls. The best receptacle for keeping this solution is a two-gallon galvanized iron tank or can. The best method of spraying is with a compressed air pump. A spray operated by a hand pump must be operated expertly to give satisfactory results. Any squirt gun will answer for throwing the solution into cracks. The mixture being composed largely of kerosene is moderately inflammable. But if reasonable precautions are taken the danger of fire is small. The spray is not poisonous.

NEEDED GLASSES.

D. G. writes: Some time ago I took a physical examination and upon examining my eyes the physician marked a 20 for my right eye and a 30 for my left, making me understand that my left eye was the weaker.

REPLY.

I presume the physician thought your left eye needed glasses.

CROSSED EYES.

A. M. D. writes: Must operation for straightening crossed eyes be performed in childhood?

REPLY.

Yes.

INFLAMMATION OF BLADDER.

G. B. writes:

1. Is inflammation of the bladder in a man 75 years old serious?

2. Once acquired, does it ever go away, or does it stay?

REPLY.

1. Yes. The infection is very apt to extend to the kidneys.

2. It does not tend to go away.

BLOOD IS ALKALINE.

N. J. D. writes: I have read in some publications, the same by physicians, that the blood is always alkaline. Is this so when the urine and saliva give an acid reaction.

REPLY.

Yes. The blood is alkaline regardless of the acidity of some secretions. The gastric juice is the best illustration of an acid secretion obtained from alkaline blood.

TONGUE BECOMES SORE.

Mrs. M. R. F. writes: Every so often my tongue gets very sore. The little balls on the tongue enlarge and the tongue is sore for two or three days. Can you please tell me what that is from?

REPLY.

Sore tongue is apt to be a forerunner of pellagra or of pernicious anemia. Have an examinaiton to see if you have either of these or any other disease.

STOCK PRICES MOVE ABOUT LISTLESSLY

Clouded Credit Situation Helps Reduce Trading; Few Shares Strong.

CALL FUNDS 10 PER CENT

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—The stock market floundered about without direction today, as speculative sentiment was torn between further excellent earnings statements, and a troublesome credit situation. Operations were on a reduced scale, with less than 3,500,000 shares changing hands.

Call money mounted to 10 per cent after renewing at 8, and after the close of the market, the weekly Federal Reserve brokerage loan statement showed an increase of $95,000,000, carrying the total to a new high record at $5,908,000,000, a surprisingly large upturn, in view of the intermittent liquidation during the past week.

Calling of loans was negligible today, but yesterday's withdrawals of $40,000,000 left a tight situation that failed to find relief. The Federal Reserve statement disclosed that the New York banks had put $57,000,000 into the market during the week ended Wednesday, and had reduced their reserve borrowings by only $20,000,000 to $305,000,000. Banks were said to be reluctant to aid the market with more funds, before further reduction of reserve borrowings. Another factor making for tight money was said to be the taking up of rights to $100,000,000 of New Guaranty Trust Co. stock Monday, the full effect of which probably was not felt until today.

Acceptance Holdings Increase.

The Bank of England made no change in its discount rate, removing for the present apprehension over withdrawal of British funds from New York, but bankers saw little prospect of better credit conditions unless the Federal Reserve resumes open market purchases of acceptances and Government securities. The reserve statements, however, showed no definite move thus far in that direction. There was a slight increase in the system's acceptance holdings, which was more than offset by a drop in Government securities. Rediscounting was reduced about $20,000,000, practically all of which appeared to have been at New York, the keen demand for commercial credit elsewhere keeping up the level.

The outstanding development in the day's business news did not appear until after the close of the market, when Bethlehem Steel placed its stock on a $6 annual dividend basis, against $4 previously, and announced record peace-time earnings for the second quarter equal to $6.33 per share, as compared to $1.57 on a lesser number of shares in the same quarter of last year. President Grace was highly optimistic over business prospects for the rest of the year. Several other large corporations reported excellent second quarter earnings.

American Telephone Again Leads.

American Telephone continued a market leader, advancing 1½ points to a new peak at 267. Allis Chalmers more than recouped its recent losses, mounting more than 8 points to a new top at 284½. A few of the utilities resumed their advance, North American climbing about 8 points to a record price.

A few specialties reached new high ground, notably Hershey Chocolate, Remington Rand and Chicago Pneumatic Tool. Shorts in Radio were again put to flight, as the stock was sent up more than 6 points above 90. Motors shares advanced moderately, and oils turned firm. Bethlehem Steel sold up nearly 3 points, close to its high, in anticipation of the dividend action, but lost most of its gain in profit taking.

Heavy Realizing Among Rails.

Heavy realizing came into the rails such issues as Atchison, Union Pacific, Nickel Plate, Missouri Pacific and Rock Island losing 2 to 4 points. Chemicals were under pressure for a time, but regained much of their losses in a late rally. Commercial Solvents, however, closed 4 points off. Ingersoll Rand and National Lead lost 5 points and International Business Machines 9.

Foreign exchanges eased somewhat, with sterling cables sagging ⅛ of a cent to $4.85⅞ in response to the Bank of England's weekly statement, showing huge gold losses.

Commodities were generally strong, wheat closing nearly 5 cents a bushel higher in response to further reductions of Canadian estimates and corn 2 cents and more higher. Cotton closed slightly higher on bullish weather.

BONDS' MAIN TREND AGAIN IS DOWNWARD

Trading Is Limited Largely to Convertibles in Heavy Turnover.

FOREIGN LIST IS DULL

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—The main trend in the listed bond market today was downward on a further tightening of money. Although sales totaled $15,811,000, the second largest daily turnover this month, trading was restricted chiefly to a handful of convertibles. American Telephone & Telegraph Convertible 4½s, which reached a new peak for the second successive day, accounted for about a third of the total volume of business.

Call money renewed at 8 and moved up to 9 and then to 10, where it closed. Time money was firm at 8 per cent for all maturities. The commercial paper market was quiet, with prime names quoted at 6 per cent and other good names at 6¼.

New financing today was chiefly in stocks, with municipal offerings dominating the bond issues.

The communication bonds were the only group to display strength throughout the session. Some of the rails opened higher but soon sold off in sympathy with the generally heavy tone of rail stocks. The convertible specialties and industrials all encountered selling and closed generally behind minus signs.

American Telephone Convertible 4½s were the feature, bounding from 175 to close at 183½, the day's best figure and a record high price, for a gain of 9 points. The stock also sold at a new top. International Telephone Convertible 4½s were strong, but they finished with only a fractional gain at 165¼. Their high price for the year is 170.

In the rails Atchison Convertible 4½s lost a point, and Alleghany Corporation 5s of 1944 were unchanged at 110 and the 5s of 1949 were off 1¾ at 109¾. New Haven Convertible 6s fell back 3. Tractions were heavy. New York State Railways 4½s, and Third Avenue Adjustment 5s sold at new lows, the latter down 3¼.

Lautaro Nitrate 6s sold again at par and then slipped off a fraction at the close. Public Service of New Jersey 4½s in a thin market dropped 11.

Selling of United States Government obligations was resumed, the Liberty First 4¼s the only listed issue to close with a gain.

DUNDEE FOULS FIELDS IN 2D ROUND, LOSING TITLE

HACK WILSON TONIC TO CUBS

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Deplorable as it may have been from the standpoint of law and order that bust on the nose with which Hack Wilson, of the Cubs, favored Ray Kolp, of the Reds, on a recent date has been the high sign for the most enthusiastic competition in the recent history of the major leagues. It renewed the hearty old feud feeling that used to animate the Cubs of Frank Chance in their meetings with John McGraw's team and it came as an opportune rebuttal to the gossip concerning the courage of the Cub team. Perhaps it was what the rest of the athletes needed to tighten their club morale and set them up, in their own minds, as the best and toughest ball team on earth, like those West Point football teams which think of themselves as "the Army against the whole damn world."

It is a singular thing about the two leading ball clubs of the major leagues this year, the Cubs and Connie Mack's A's, that their immediate rivals have had no great respect for their courage. Baseball players are not noted for their tact in discussing such matters, and many times this season prior to the bust on Mr. Kolp's rather prominent horn, the Cubs had been counted out on the ground that they were not brave enough to fight off a challenge.

Cubs Not Supposed To Be Game.

I have never been able to understand how baseball made any great call on valor because it seems painless enough to stand around in a sunfield waiting for fly balls or hoppers and to swing a whiffletree at a fast one at the plate. Still, it is well recognized in the business that some teams win because they are game and some lose because they aren't. The Cubs were supposed not to be game and some of the boys on the other teams remarked as much and more.

The Yankees have felt the same about the Athletics and have been waiting patiently for them to drop a few on the theory that once they drop a few they will become unnerved and go on to drop a great many. Patience has ceased to be a virtue in this case and Mr. Huggins, the Yankee's head man, would be pleased to see them overtake the A's instead of waiting for them to fall back.

Wilson's Pugilism Inspires Cubs.

Whether this theory is correct or otherwise is someting that the Yankees are not likely to ascertain this year. The A's have yet to drop a few and it seems rather droll of a ball club that lies ten full games to the rear of the A's to pass unkind cracks about their probable conduct under theoretical and highly improbable conditions.

Although Mr. Wilson was fined $100 for busting Mr. Kolp, the effect has been such that the bust would have been a bargain at many times the price. Up to that time, the Cubs had no particular public character. They were efficient, but not always steady and even as winners of a pennant they would have been just a lot of well-dressed and well-behaved athletes. The mere winning of a pennant can not color a ball team with gaudy splashes, remembering some dull and homely outfits that have played in the world series in years gone by, only to disband the next year, with the members fading back into mediocrity.

Cubs Seem Very Tough To Giants.

Since the great nose bleed in Chicago, the Cubs have assumed the character of a truculent outfit, playing baseball with commanding confidence, marked at times by personal fury. They are standing on their own lot now, knocking off the guests as they drop in and the three straight defeats of the Giants, who doubtless shared the general low opinion of their courage, makes them seem very tough, indeed.

It would be wrong to cheer for brutality, but judging by reports from the press coop, Mr. Wilson did not bust Mr. Kolp very hard. It was more a gesture than a practical sock, although it probably was a better poke on the nose than many you will see in the prize fights this season, what with most of hte boys refusing to fight owing to delicate social objections, and the rest of the boys just boxing fast and fancy for the decisions. But, in baseball the young men set a high moral value on anthing

TILDEN AND COCHET DRAWN TO MEET IN CUP SINGLES TODAY

Aces of 2 Nations to Follow Borotra and Lott on Court.

Big Bill Quoted at Even Money; Interest at High Pitch.

PARIS, July 25 (A.P.).—Just as America would have it, and with France entirely satisfied, too, the Davis Cup forces of two great tennis nations will swing into action tomorrow in the opening singles battles with Big Bill Tilden facing Henri Cochet and George Lott in the opposite court from Jean Borotra.

The draw for the challenge round for the historic trophy was staged today in all solemnity in the presence of the players and diplomats of both nations.

The veteran Tilden, still America's chief hope for victory, will face Cochet, world's champion, in the crucial duel of the day at 4:30 p. m. (8:15 a. m. Eastern standard time) after Lott, fiery youngster, facing the challenge round test for the first time opens the series with the veteran Borotra at 2:15 p. m. (10:30 Eastern standard time).

Borotra 2-1 Choice Over Lott.

In the French mind, Borotra is a 2-to-1 favorite to defeat Lott, 22-year-old youngster from Chicago. Despite recent defeats, Tilden's reputation still carries such weight in France that he is quoted at even money with Cochet, who whipped him decisively at Wimbledon a few weeks ago.

The pairings, as drawn today, will be reversed for the second singles matches to be staged Sunday. Saturday Wilmer Allison, young Texan, and John Van Ryn, former Princeton ace, will engage the French in the doubles combat. Although France's doubles team will not be announced until tomorrow, Cochet and Borotra are expected to carry that part of the cup defense burden also.

Interest in Matches Unprecedented.

With America's chances of regaining the cup, lost to France two years ago, increased because of the illness of Rene Lacoste, copartner with Cochet in domination of the men's tennis world for three years, the French public is showing unprecedented interest.

The advance sale has exceeding any other competition in the history of French tennis and not a single reserved seat in the spacious Roland Garros Stadium was left tonight. Prospective spectators early in the evening hired messenger boys to stand in line at the wickets for the 3,000 general admission tickets that will go on sale at 8:15 a. m.

"I hope to reverse that Wimbledon score, Henri," said Tilden.

"I'll make you a small bet you don't," responded Cochet. They shook hands, but it was not indicated whether the wager involved a dinner with wine or mineral water or new American bills against ancient French francs.

WILL MEET SUNDAY.

The Lafayette and Corinthian Midgets will meet at 11 o'clock on Sunday instead of at 11:30, as first announced. The Corinthians want games with strong teams in their class, especially with American Legion nines. Call Clarendon 1334-J-2 after 6 p m.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS.

NEW YORK, July 25 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—This week-end will see the passing from international tennis competition of one of the greatest figures the sport has ever known. Bill Tilden, acutely conscious of the fact that the years have been taking toll of his speed and stamina, has announced that the Davis Cup matches starting tomorrow will be his last appearance in the big time. The best wishes of every tennis fan will go to the court with him.

Tilden is not the most popular man in the sport by a long shot, but it is universally recognized that he has always given the game his very best, and his best, my hearties, has been considerable over a stretch of ten years. No man has shown more willingness to assist in the development of young players to the greater glory of American tennis, and there is hardly a topnotcher in the sport who does not owe something to the tutelage of the lanky Philadelphian.

That he will make the supreme effort of his career in the Davis Cup matches may be taken for granted. The chances are that it will not be enough, since Cochet clearly and repeatedly has demonstrated his superiority over the American veteran. But Tilden will give everything he has, and if Cochet is overconfident or a little bit off form, William is just the lad who can knock him over, regardless of how the past performance chart reads.

Rest for Johnny Farrell Urged by Friends.

Friends of Johnny Farrell, including brother professionals, are urging the former American open champion to toss his bag of clubs in the hall closet and forgetall about the game for a while. Johnny is away under par physically and his friends fear his health will be permanently impaired unless he takes a long rest.

Ever since he won the National Open in 1928, Johnny's life has been one gruelling match after another Playing on raw nerve alone, he finished second to Hagen in the British Open. That effort just about put the K. O. on him. He showed at Winged Foot in the National Open and again at Lido in the Metropolitan Open that he is far from the Farrell of old.

"Riding" From Dugouts Then Burned Up Asbestos.

Veteran managers like McGraw lament the present hand-shaking era in baseball, but are powerless to do anything about it. Time was when almost every player regarded players on other clubs as his bitter enemies and treated them as such both on and off the field. Nowadays the players fraternize freely not only off the field, but on it. There still is considerable "riding" from the benches, but it is time, indeed, compared to what it used to be.

I sat on the Boston Red Sox bench on that October day in 1916 when Babe Ruth won a 14-inning pitching duel with Sherrod Smith, of the Brooklyn Robins, in one of the most thrilling world's series games ever played. After thirteen years his ears are still a deep cerise from listening to the remarks bellowed from the Red Sox bench at Smith, Jack Coombs, who was coaching at third base for Broklyn, and other Robins. Printed, they would burn up asbestos. The Robins, save for an occasional gesture indicating extreme disdain, paid no attention to the salvos of abuse.

Coombs, at least, apparently did not take them seriously, because he slipped into the runway behind the Red Sox dugout between innings late in the game to indulge in the forbidden pleasure of a cigarette. None of the Box took any notice of him. As soon as he was back in the coacher's box, however, they opened up on him again. Apparently in baseball ethical considerations govern even the practice of abusing a rival.

Babe Ruth Uncovers Historical Event.

Earl Combs, the Yank center fielder, as is well-known, is a bona-fide Kentucky colonel, the governor of that State having appointed the schoolmaster to his staff with that rank several years ago. It was only recently that Roy Sherrid, rookie picher, heard somebody remark that Combs was just as much a colonel as his boss, Jacob Ruppert.

"Where'd Combs ever get the title?" asked Sherrid.

"Young man," said Babe Ruth, "study the history of your country!"

Barnes Leads Canada Open With 66

New York Veteran 4 Under Par to Lead Brilliant Field.

Wakelam, Canadian, Second With 68; 69 for Armour.

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

KANAWAKI GOLF CLUB, Montreal, Que., July 25 (A.P.).—"Long Jim" Barnes, retired professional golfer of New Rochelle, N. Y., who scorns knickers, showed as little respect for par over the Kanawaki course today and scored a brilliant 66 to lead the field in the first round of the Canadian open golf championship. The former American and British open champion, who insists on wearing trousers long enough to cover all his long legs, compiled his score early in the day and despite an all day assault it stood when the day's work was done.

Little Ernie Wakelam, 29-year-old pro from Brockville, Ont., a product of English golf by way of Hoylake, occupied second place tonight with 68. The Ontario pro, who was formerly at Kent, Quebec, advanced to the runner-up position just before the shades of evening began to fall over the historic course. Two other subpar scores, a pair of 69's returned by Tommy Armour, Detroit, former United States and Canadian open champion, and Billy Burke, Westport, N. Y., New York State open champion, represented a tie for third position.

Only Four Able To Better Par.

The free predictions that the stars of two countries would drive the par 70 of Kanawaki to cover were slightly premature. Only this quartet of able golf citizens would shade it. An overnight train took some of the roll from the ball and after all was said and done par was far from disgrace. Emmett French, Southern Pines, N. C.; Leo Diegel, the defending champion from Mexico, and George Elder, young Montreal pro, equaled it and everybody else was over

Barnes, who has seen many golfers come and go and can still play better golf than many of the young fellows, was off to a grand start just after a beaming sun had cleared the fairway of dew.

The New York business man picked up four birdies on the first six holes. At the second, third, fifth and sixth and then it was easy sailing. He stuck to par until he reached the turn where he took a 4 for the one-shot ninth. Coming home he was not pitching quite so close to the pin as was his practice going out, but got a birdie at the sixteenth and played the other holes in par.

Wakelman Brilliant After Poor Start.

Wakelam, the runner-up for the day, followed much on the order of the leader's play. He had to have 5, one over par, at the first, but never again did he bow his knee to the old man of the game. Three birdies on the first nine enabled him to start home with a count of 33, two under par, and then all he had to do was hold his own to get in just over the tall Cornishman, who by this

Cubs Rally to Beat Giants; Extend Lead

Chicago, July 25 (A.P.).—The Cubs made a clean sweep of a three-game series with the Giants by coming from behind today to win the final game, 8 to 5, by winning while the Pittsburgh Pirates were kept idle by rain, the Cubs increased their lead to a full game. Cvengros, who pitched the eighth inning, got credit for the victory. Mel Ott hit his twenty-seventh home run of the year in the second inning while Hack Wilson drove out No. 26 in the seventh.

Hiker Sets Cross-Country Record Minus Official Welcome on Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25 (A.P.).—Atraham Lincoln Monteverde, 60-year-old amateur hiker, of Morristown, N. J., set a new record across the United States when he arrived here last night, but because of a mixup he did not get an official welcome and it was not known until today he was in town.

Monteverde reported at the City Hall at 7:10 o'clock, but Mayor James Rolph had already locked up and most officials of the Amateur Athletic union also had called it a day Monteverde was expected at 5 p. m., and when he failed to appear, it was assumed he was coming in today. Sans greeting and mighty tired, the old timer went to bed and at noon today was still reported "in the feathers."

When the Morristown book binder planted his brogans on the steps of San Francisco's Municipal Building he had covered the 3,415 miles from New York, via Philadelphia, in 79 days and 10 hours. He left New York at 7:20 a. m., May 6. The former record for the coast-to-coast walk was 80 days, 5 hours, held by John Ennis.

A'S TROUNCE INDIANS BY 21-3 SCORE

Foxx Hits 2 Homers; Macks Pound Out 25 Safeties.

PHILADELPHIA, July 25 (A.P.).—The Athletics staged a tremendous slaughter at the expense of the Cleveland Indians today, winning the final game of their series by a score of 21 to 3. The victory increased the Athletics' lead over the idle Yankees to ten and one-half games.

Jimmy Foxx brought his home run total up to 22 for a tie with Babe Ruth and Al Simmons for second place in the American League by slamming out two in the first three innings. He now has hit four in three games. Mule Haas and Grove also hit homers.

Cards Hit Ball Hard To Trounce Phils, 10-3

St. Louis, Mo., July 25 (A.P.).—Collecting sixteen hits off two Philly hurlers, the St. Louis Cardinals today won their third straight game from the Philadelphia Nationals, 10 to 3. Jim Bottomley was back in the lineup and Manager Bill McKechnie was at the third base coaching line.

Jess Haines held the Philadelphians to four hits, two of which were homers by O'Doul and Klein, the Philly sluggers. Klein's thirtieth homer was the only hit off Haines after the second inning.

Gelbert, Cardinal shortstop, had a perfect day at bat, collecting four hits in four times up.

By their victory the Cardinals made a clean sweep of the present series. They open a four-game series with the Giants tomorrow.

Chisox Defeat Nats, 3-1, in 10 Innings

Marberry and Walsh Pitch Scoreless Ball to 9th.

Cissell's Single With Bases Full Wins for Chicago.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THE Nationals' cry for good pitching was answered yesterday but as the White Sox also were similarly blessed, Chicago took the final of a series of three thrillers in the tenth inning, 3 to 1.

All of the scoring was packed in the last two frames, with the Sox breaking the ice in the ninth, the Nats matching this run in their half and failing to win out when Buddie Myer was caught trying to steal home, and then came an alien rally which the natives were unable even to approach

Fred Marberry and "Little Ed" Walsh started on the firing line for their respective teams, and despite the extreme heat, both pitched shutout ball for eight frames. It was simply a case of which would wilt first and Walsh did, but Manager Blackburne managed to yank him quick enough to prevent much damage and Harold McKain and Bob Welland, the latter a southpaw, held the Nats in check until the game ended.

An unusual feature was the fact that McKain received credit for the victory, although he pitched but two batts and no batters were officially listed as having faced him. The explanation of this is that, after he went to the hill in the ninth with the bases loaded and two out, Myer, taking advantage of his long windup, tried to steal home with what would have given Washington victory then and there with the count 1 and 1 on Hayes.

Shires' Triple Starts Rally in Ninth.

With both flingers performing so effectively, the fans were given their first scare when, with one down in the ninth, Shires' triple off the right-field fence and Reynolds' sacrifice fly netted a run for the White Sox. But the wear and tear was beginning to tell on Walsh and the Nats quickly knotted the count. Rice coaxed a pass as a starter and, after Goslin had flied out, registered on Myer's double off the right-field wall. West fouled to Berg, but Walsh then filled the sacks by passing both Cronin and Ruel, drawing a pass himself from Blackburne as the fourth ball buzzed past the Nat catcher. This brought McKain to the hill and Myer was

FOUR D. C. GOLFERS IN FIRST FLIGHT AT BALTIMORE

T. W. Sasscer Medalist by A Stroke

Scores 73 Due to 30-Foot Putt on the 18th Hole.

Peacock, L. Sasscer, Kellerman, Curtis in Top Flight.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

MARYLAND COUNTRY CLUB, Baltimore, Md., July 25.—With a spectacular 30-foot putt on the final green of his 18-hole round, which gave him a birdie 3, Thomas W. Sasscer, former champion of the Maryland Country Club, today won the medal for low gross score in the annual invitation tournament of the Maryland Country Club.

His card was 36—37—73, one stroke better than the 74 score by H. C. Marcy, Rodgers Forge, and Harry A. Parr 3d, Elkridge. Parr missed a 15-footer on the home green that would have tied the winning score. His ball hit the cup and bounced out.

Roger Peacock, Indian Spring, who unfortunately took three putts on three greens, and Leroy D. Sasscer, Indian Spring, who, notwithstanding the fact that he did not have a 6 on his card, missed two strokes. Both finished with 75.

Nearly Sixty District Players Compete.

In a field of more than 200 contestants, there were nearly 60 players from Washington, representing every club in the District except Burning Tree. The field was a fast one, 88 being the highest score to be eligible for match play in the fifth sixteen, and only four Washingtonians qualified in the first sixteen. Byrn Curtiss, Indian Spring, and Karl F. Kellerman, jr., Columbia, being the two successful players in addition to Peacock and Sasscer. The latter is the brother of the medalist.

Harry G. Pitt, former Middle Atlantic champion, of the Manor Club, who played yesterday with a card of 78, withdrew from the tournament.

The pairings in the first sixteen are as follows:

Byrn Curtiss (Indian Spring), 78, vs. L. D. Sasscer (Indian Spring), 73; Thomas Jones (Rolling Road), 77, vs. H. Crim Peacock (Lexington, Va.), 77; W. D. Waxter (Baltimore Country Club), 78, vs. H. A. Wiestling (York, Pa.), 79; H. C. Marcy (Rodgers Forge), 74, vs. John Grimes (Rolling Road), 77; Alex M. Knapp (Baltimore Country Club), 77, vs. J. V. D. Tweedy (Elkridge), 78; G. Parr 3d (Elkridge), 74, vs. Thomas W. Sasscer (Maryland Country Club), 73.

In order to give all of the out-of-town contestants an opportunity to continue in match play, the golf committee, under the chairmanship of William P. Hall, decided to increase the number of sixteens from five to seven. The Washington players qualified as follows:

MITCHELL-BUCHANAN GAIN PUBLIC PARKS FINAL

Team Defeats Considine, Shepard

Mitchell and O'Neill in Semifinal Singles Match Today.

Considine to Oppose Staubly in Quarter Final Battle.

By JACK ESPEY.

DOOLEY MITCHELL, public parks singles champion in 1926-1927, nursed his hopes of winning both the singles and doubles titles of 1929 through another stage yesterday when, paired with Bill Buchanan, fellow Montrose Park racqueter, he advanced to the finals of the doubles division of the current championship tournament by defeating Bob Considine and Herb Shepard, of Henry Park, by 6—4, 6—4, at the Monument Grounds.

Mitchell today faces the veteran Maurice O'Neill, champion in 1923-1924, in one of the semifinals of the singles. Considine, the defending champion, who in yesterday's doubles match saw his hopes of a twin triumph blasted, will oppose Alan Staubly in the lone remaining quarterfinal singles encounter. Both matches will commence at 5 p. m.

The other singles semifinal will be staged tomorrow at Henry Park along with the doubles final. Frank Shore, District junior champion, will meet the winner of the Considine-Staubly match in the singles fray, while Mitchell and Buchanan are to play O'Neill and George Shoemaker in the deciding doubles clash. These matches will start at 3 p. m.

Mitchell-Buchanan Team Rallies to Win.

For a moment yesterday it appeared that Considine instead of Mitchell was to prolong his attempt to gain the final bracket in both divisions of play, for the George Washington University ace broke through Buchanan's service to capture the seventh game and the lead, 4—3, in the first set.

But Mitchell rallied strongly after that and joined Buchanan in an efficient driving game mixed with smart net play which netted the three succeeding games and the set. The second set was a thrilling affair with both teams scoring points in sensational manner. The break did not come until the late stages and the Mitchell-Buchanan duo wrested victory from two furiously contested games in succession.

O'Neill and Shoemaker made good the judgment of several experts who picked them to reach the doubles finals before the tournament started. This pair of steel racquet wielders met determined opposition from Everett Simon and Bob Newby, but subdued them with superior forecourt tactics.

Steady Lobbing Game Wins For Simon and Newby.

Previousiy the losers had defeated Staubly and Douglas Love in a marathon contest which embraced 44 games and three sets. Staubly and Love had eliminated Felix M. Silva and Gene Hermann, 9—7, 6—0. A steady lobbing game turned the tide in favor of the Simon-Newby team against Staubly and Love, the latter falling down miserably in the second and third sets when accurate returns of their foes' high lofts might have reversed the decision.

Following are yesterday's results and the pairings for today and tomorrow:

DOUBLES.

Second round—Staubly and Love defeated Silva and Hermann, 9—7, 6—0. Quarterfinals—Simon and Newby defeated Staubly and Love, 7—9, 7—5, 9—7. Semifinals—O'Neill and Shoemaker defeated Simon and Newby, 6—3, 6—3; Mitchell and Buchanan defeated Considine and Shepard, 6—4, 6—4.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS (MONUMENT GROUNDS)

Va. Trapshooting Champ To Defend Title Aug. 9-10

Special to The Washington Post.

ROANOKE, Va., July 25 (A.P.).—Dr. Harry M. Hayter, of Abingdon, holder of the Virginia trapshooting title, will defend his laurels against probably the strongest field in the history of the Virginia Trapshooters Association at the thirtieth annual tournament here August 9 and 10. The Roanoke Gun Club will be host to the visiting gun artists this year.

A new team trophy will be offered at the tournament, the Richmond Club now holding permanent possession of the former trophy by winning it three times. Roanoke, Winchester and Tazewell, regarded by trapshooting officials as presenting probably the strongest teams this year, are expected to stage lively competition for the trophy.

About 125 Contestants Are Expected to Compete.

Almost every city and town of more than 3,000 population in the Old Dominion has a gun club and upwards of 125 contestants are expected to compete in the shoot here. M. D. Hart, secretary of the game and inland fisheries commission, will enter the singles as a member of the Richmond Club. Mr. Hart is a regular attendant at the shoots.

Amateurs eligible for the trophies and awards offered by the Virginia Amateur Trapshooters Association are required to be residents of the State, but trophies in the classification system are open to amateurs regardless of residence.

The champion at the meet here will represent Virginia at the grand American handicap meet to be held at Dayton, Ohio, August 19. The State meet is held each year in advance of the national gathering to pick a representative.

Champion to Be Selected On 200 Target Ratings.

The individual champion will be selected on the basis of the highest total score on the 200 championship targets, the doubles targets and the handicap targets.

Although "shaky" in earlier shoots the Richmond Gun Club is expected to make a strong bid for the team trophy again this year. Although five men constitute the strength of a team, the Richmond trapshooters will bring at least fifteen men to take part in the shoot.

Among the clubs expected to present strong entries are Tazewell, Staunton, Winchester, Richmond, Roanoke, Bristol, Lawrenceville, Clifton Forge, Petersburg, Lynchburg, Alexandria, Newport News and Norfolk.

Business Manager To Pilot Columbus

Columbus, Ga., July 25 (A.P.).—Frank Kohlbecker has been relieved as manager of the Columbus Foxes in the Southeastern Baseball League, it was announced today, and Bill White, business manager of the club, has been placed in charge. The action was taken by directors yesterday and followed a continued series of defeats by the Foxes, who have not been serious contenders at any stage of the season.

White declared that efforts would be made to strengthen the team.

STRONG FOES TO CLASH SUNDAY

Georgetown Invades Alexandria to Meet Celtics.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., July 25.—The Georgetown Athletic Club baseball team, champions of the District of Columbia last year, and one of Alexandria's most heartily feared rivals in the sandlot baseball world, will cross the Potomac Sunday to open hostilities with the St. Mary's Celtics in a three-game series, the first to be played at Baggett's Stadium, starting at 3 o'clock.

Tommy Ford, veteran basket ball official, who played baseball here with the Dreadnaughts last season, is with the Georgetown aggregation; Lefty McIntyre, late of the Milwaukee American Association Team, and who is considered the iron man of the District sandlots, will be on the mound for the invaders, and altogether the prospects are for an interesting afternoon.

Charlie Corbett's Celtics, still smarting under the defeat suffered at the hands of the Naval Hospital boys last Sunday, are putting in their time with drills. Doc Dreitus, who is considered one of the best athletes ever turned out by Alexandria, has been doubling in the box and center field for the Celtics, to say nothing of his murderous hitting.

PLAYGROUND RIVALS TIE IN MEET

Garfield and Virginia Teams Divide Conference Honors.

GARFIELD and Virginia Avenue, ancient Southeast rivals, tied for the Municipal Playgrounds Southeast Conference field and track meet honors yesterday on the Virginia Avenue Playground, with 58 points each. Eleven other teams contested the tying teams for honors.

Other teams to score points were: Hoover, 29; Ketcham, 14; Buchanan, 7; Wallach, 3; Stanton, 3; Orr, 2. The showing of Hoover and Ketcham came as a distinct surprise. Ketcham has made fair records in the dual and triangular meets, but Hoover has never gained much recognition in track.

Everett Shorb, of Garfield, won the high point scoring honors with two firsts and a second place. Shorb won firsts in the broad jump and half mile, and was second in the high jump. As all contestants will be limited to one event in the city meet, Shorb will represent Garfield in the half-mile run.

The girls continued to be active in the field and track games yesterday, with a dual and one triangular meeting be held. In the dual meet Hayes defeated Wheatley, 34 to 44.

Barnard Girls Win Triangular Meet.

Barnard won the triangular meet staged yesterday on the Brightwood Playground. The final scores were Barnard, 70; Brightwood, 53; Truesdale, 21. Competition was keen in all events.

June Harvey, of Barnard, was the outstanding star of the meet. She won first place in each of the four events for the 70-pound class. Mary Harvey, of the same grounds, took two firsts and two seconds in the 100-pound class events.

Today, the Northern Conference meet will hold the spotlight. The games are scheduled for the Iowa Playgrounds, Iowa avenue and Upsher street, starting at 2:30 o'clock. Representatives of twelve playgrounds will compete. The grounds to be represented include John Burroughs, Brightwood, Truesdale, Barnard, Park View, Iowa, Takoma, Twin Oaks, Brookland Tenth, Evarts streets, Columbia Heights and Phillips.

WILSON'S EXAMPLE PRODS CUBS' COURAGE

like that and you may be sure that some of the chaps who were casting the 56-pound aspersion at the Cubs' courage a few weeks ago will be more reserved from now on.

Brief Is Tenure of Public Hero.

Incidentally, there is a man named Hornsby playing with the Cubs at this time. This suggests how brief is the tenure of a public hero befor a given public in the baseball business. A few seasons back Mr. Hornsby won a pennant and a world series as manager of the Cardinals and great was the disorder on the streets of that city for several nights. His picture was in the paper, on billboards, in the windows in department stroes and little buttons which the citizens wore in their lapels. He was a great fellow in St. Louis pro tem.

Just now Mr. Wilson is a great fellow in Chicago, requiring a police escort to break through admiring crowds. This would be a fine time for him to take a lot of bows and such profit as he can, because great fellows in baseball are a long time forgotten.

Laurle Stud Is Sold To Baltimore Banker

Baltimore, Md., July 25.—The Laurel Park Stud Farm, on Washington boulevard near Savage Station, has been purchased by F. Warrington Gillet, Baltimore bankers, according to an announcement today.

Mr. Gillet said plans for the property had not been formulated. A number of his horses, including some steeplechasers, would be sent to the farm, he said.

The Laurel Park Stud Farm was established by Commander J. K. L. Ross, Montreal race horse owner, a number of years ago at a cost of more than $250,000.

The farm includes about 370 acres of land, having a mile outdoor track and a quarter-mile indoor track. Its equipment as a breeding farm for race horses also includes a circular training barn containing 72 stalls.

The property is further improved by a large dwelling quarters for jockeys, a power plant and other buildings.

FOUL COSTS DUNDEE RING CHAMPIONSHIP

to make the welterweight limit of 147 pounds when they weighed in at 3 o'clock this afternoon. He just managed to make the weight, scaling about an ounce under the prescribed poundage, while Fields tipped the beam at exactly 145 pounds.

Foul Unintentional, Loser Declares.

Dundee said th efoul was unintentional.

"I think Jackie knows that," the former titleholder said. "Fields is a great fighter and I wish him luck with the title."

After recovering from the effects of the foul punch, Fields was so happy that he limped across the ring to kiss his manager, Gig Rooney.

He said he was sorry that he had to win the title on a foul, but he was confident he would have knocked out the title holder.

"I know he did not mean to do it," Fields said. "It is the only bout I ever won on a foul. I regret that it ended that way for the sake of the spectators. I only wish it had continued. I'm sure I would have finished him."

With his victory, Fields came into undisputed possession of the world's welterweight championship.

Fields has the distinction of defeating young Jack Thompson, the negro warrior, who scored a surprising knockout over Dundee in their nontitle engagemetn in Chicago a year ago.

The Michigan Board of Athletic Control, which governs boxing in this State, may find itself in difficulty if it considers fining Dundee for fouling Fields. Dundee received $50,000 in cash before entering the ring in defense of his title. The commissioners, therefore, may have a hard time prying a fine loose from his end of the purse. Dundee got $10,000 at the time the match was made and the remaining $40,000 tonight before he put on the gloves.

GEO. VOIGT TO DEFEND TITLE

Will Meet Good Field in Long Island Open Tourney.

NEW YORK, July 25.—A large field is expected to compete in the eighth annual Long Island open golf championship to be played over the No. 3 and No. 4 courses of the Salisbury Country Club, August 5, 6 and 7, according to Perley Boone, tournament chairman.

George Voigt, last year's winner of both the Long Island open and amateur, will be defending his open title. At least two prominent professionals were were unable to take part last year will be on Voigt's heels this year. They are Gene Sarazen, who was making a barnstorming tour with Johnny Farrell last August, and MacDonald Smith, the Lakeville professional, who had other engagements.

Voigt Will Have to Guard His Camels Well.

With Sarazen and Smith in the running, together with such sharpshooters as Wiffey Cox, the runner-up to Bill Mahlhorn in the metropolitan open; Willie Klein, the runner-up to Voight last year; Maurice McCarthy, who is expected to play from Old Flatbush; Gil Nichols, Eddie Driggs, Eddie Held and Mark Flannagan, it is evident that Voigt will have to guard his laurels by keeping close to par or under.

In addition, the entry list this year is expected to set a record, partly because of the annual growth in golf on Long Island and partly because the prizes for the tournament have been materially increased. The list follows: Champion, $400; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $100; fifth, $75, and sixth, $50. There are also special prizes for the best 36 holes each day and the best 18 holes.

Pros Have Greater Incentive Before Them.

With more than $1,000 in prize money the pros will have more of an incentive than heretofore. Play in the championship proper will be confined to 72 holes on Tuesday and Wednesday. August 6 and 7. On the preceding day, Monday, August 5, will occur the annual amateur-professional, best-ball competition, which servies as a curtain-raiser.

Charles H. Mayo, of the Pomonok Country Club, and his 17-year-old son Harold, are the present holders of the amateur pro title. They will be defending their honors, and it is expected 60 or more other teams will be competing.

Central Park "Fish" Win at Petersburg

Petersburg, Va., July 25.—The first annual official city junior swimming meet for boys and girls from 12 to 18 years of age, members of the teams of the various playgrounds of Petersburg, was staged yesterday afternoon at Wilcox Lake in the presence of a large assembly. Central Park Team piled 65 points and captured the banner, which was presented by City Manager Paul S. Morton. Good Will Center took second place, with 27 points.

All taking part in the contest made an excellent showing in the various events and the time recorded by the winners was considered good. The prizes awarded to the winners were made possible through the cooperation of the Petersburg Retail Merchants Association. City Manager Morton was master of ceremonies and awarded the prizes to the successful winners.

Judges of the meet were Myers, Cotton, Dutrow, Grasfield and Wingfield. Timekeeper was Best, and clerk of court, Turner.

Prince Georges County Series Admits 2 Clubs

The other clubs in the series are Mount Rainier, Hyattsville, Berwyn, Bowie, Lanham, Triangles, Clinton and Maryland A. C.

Franchise fees will be accepted and a schedule adopted at a meeting to be held Monday night.

THE DOUBLE

By EDGAR WALLACE

He took out his lamp and flashed it into the dark opening. The stone stairs that led straight downward were unusually steep and so narrow that a stout man would have found it difficult to use them. As it was, Dick had to walk sideways, feeling for every step, and keeping his head bent, since the sloping brick roofing was low.

He had gone down four steps when, looking to the right, he saw a horizontal slit in the wall and realized that he was looking under the fireplace into the room. It was from here, then, that the mocking laugnter had come so inexplicably.

Modern houses in London do not have secret passages, and these stairs had the appearance of great age. The treads had been hollowed by much use.

"Have you seen anything like this before?" he asked the inspector over his shoulder.

"Never," was the reply, 'but I've seen these steps before!"

Dick was so startled that he stopped.

"Where?"

"They used to be on the outside of the house a long time ago—let me see. . . It must have been 30 or 40 years ago. A sort of stone fire-escape. They were put up by the Brothers of St. Anna when they used this place as a sort of headquarters. I've often wondered what old Derrick had done with them when he rebuilt. He must have inclosed them with another wall."

"Where did they end?"

The old inspector thought.

"I believe in the courtyard."

This information did not entirely dispel Dick Staines' amazement Why should old Derrick, a law-abiding man, spend money on this whim of his, fitting electric doors, building secret stairways?

A third of the way down he saw a depression in the wall on the right and what appeared to be another wicket. He tapped it, and it sounded hollow. When he tried to find a handle or a switch that would open it he was unsuccessful.

"There were doors on all the floors," said the inspector. "Perhaps this one isn't working. The old man was crazy about fire danger. He used to have a patent cradle on the roof so that he could let himself down to the ground, hand over hand, and on the top floor he had ropes hanging on pegs at all the windows."

They came at last to the bottom. Dick put his hand in his pocket; Larkin's key was still there, and, taking it out, he unlocked the heavy iron door. There was a switch here, as there was at the top of the stairs, but there were no lights, and Dick found himself in complete darkness. Sending the rays of his lamp around, he saw that the walls were covered with steel shelves, and every shelf was filled with bottles lying on their sides. This was the wine cellar. There was no sign of the fugitive girl, nor did he expect to see one.

Three walls of the wine cellar were covered with shelves and half the fourth. On the ground was a big, heavy iron box in which there were a number of compartments, half of which were occupied by bottles of liquor. He tried to lift the receptacle to make a further examination of the floor, but it resisted his efforts. Calling to one of the detectives, he pointed to this box.

"Help pull this aside," he said.

The man stooped, gave one tug, and in another second was sprawling on his back; for the steel box was hinged in one corner, and somebody had neglected to fasten the invisible bolt which kept it tight to the wall. In the place of the box was a square aperture and an iron ladder that led down into the darkness.

Dick flashed his lamp down, saw that it was less than six feet deep; saw something else. A little black heap of some flimsy material. He went down the ladder and picked it up. It was a woman's scarf—the scarf that Mary Dane's double had worn—there was about it a queerly elusive fragrance. He stuffed it in his pocket and took his bearings.

A low-roofed passage ran ahead of him. It was, he found, level for about twenty yards, then began to climb upward and terminated in a square brick cellar about six feet by eight. On his right was another door—ajar. He pushed it wide and stepped out into the open air.

He was in a garden of some sort. Ahead of him loomed the gaunt outlines of a big house.

He looked back at the building from which he had emerged. It was a small red-brick outhouse, surmounted by a cupola on which were still traces of ancient gilding. Over the door through which he had passed was chiselled on the stone slab that spanned the door:

"Let Us Descend That We May Ascend."

The inspector and two detectives followed him into the garden and Dick pointed out the inscription.

"That's a motto of the old Brothers of St. Anna," said the inspector. 'I seem to remember there was some connection between the two houses They had a chapel, which is now Lord Weald's garage. This is probably the way to it."

The inspector (Dick recalled the fact that Bourke had spoken of him) told him somethir g else that was interesting. He said that old Mr. Derrick had bought this derelict house in the garden of which they now stood, for a very high price. Nobody understood why such a shrewd dealer should have allowed himself to be robbed. Some other house speculator had got in before him, apparently

"Obviously the old man knew about this passage. That is why he allowed the house to go to blazes," said Dick "But why on earth did he do it? He was an honest man. Was this house ever occupied after he bought it?"

"Oh, yes," said the inspector, who had an encyclopedic knowledge of the neighborhood. "A lady lived here I forget her name; she died about twelve years ago."

"Young?" asked Dick, beginning to understand.

"Middle-aged. She was a very good-looking lady, a Miss Belfer." He laughed. "I daresay Mr. Derrick will tell you all about it: that was what the quarrel was about when he left home."

Dick asked no more. From the garden it was easy to escape: there was the gate leading into the mews, or the weed-grown path that skirted the house and come out by its side.

When he got back to Tommy Weald's dining room he took out the scarf he had in his pocket and examined it. It was a very dark blue, and he remembered now that she had worn it loosely round her neck. His first step was to get into touch with Walter Derrick. The servants at Keyley could give him no exact information; they thought he was "somewhere in the North" and were unaware that he had come back to London. There were certain hotels, however, at which he invariably stopped on his way to Scotland, and this list Dick handed over to a detective sergeant, who spent half the night telephoning.

They failed to locate him, however, until the following morning, when he rang up from Stamford to ask for news. Dick was out, but immediately on his return he called up the George, from which hostel Mr. Derrick had phoned, and gave the silent man a very long and detailed account of what had happened the previous night.

"Did you catch the girl?" interrupted Walter. "And the man—what a brute! I can't understand it, can you?"

"I can't understand anything," admitted Dick. "There's another point I want to ask you, Mr. Derrick. Do you know a Miss Belfer?"

Uncle Ray's Corner

A GLOOMY knight, Sir Modred caused sorrow untold to everyone. For some reason he had grown jealous of Sir Launcelot, and he whispered things into the king's ear about the famous knight.

King Arthur was a noble man and did not wish to think ill of any one, but Modred proved that there was reason for jealousy. As a result war took place between the knights who were friendly to Launcelot and those who were friendly to the king.

During the course of the war, a fierce battle occurred. Sir Bohort knocked King Arthur from his horse and would have slain him had not Launcelot rushed up and cried:

Fiercely they fought in the last desperate struggle.

"No! Do not touch him. I will not see him slain!"

Tears came to the king's eyes, and he told his men to stop fighting.

There was a truce for a year, and Sir Launcelot went to his castle in France—wishing no more warfare. Sir Launcelot's enemies, however, persuaded King Arthur to renew the war. Leaving Modred in charge of the kingdom, the king crossed to France with his knights.

A siege was laid against Launcelot's castle, but after it had lasted for about two months, news came to Arthur which made him return to England. During his absence, Sir Modred had told the people that Arthur was dead and had caused himself to be crowned king! He had declared that he would take Guinevere for his wife, but she had escaped to the Tower of London.

When Arthur reached England, Modred brought an army to oppose him. The slaughter was terrible as the knights clashed. King Arthur himself killed Modred, but when the fighting was over there were few knights alive on either side. The glory of the Round Table was no more.

Today's True Detective Story

By VANCE WYNN

The Body in the Mattress

The Wassahicken Drive is one of the most picturesque spots in Fairmount Park, the great pleasure ground in Philadelphia, and it is the last place in the world that one looks for tragedy, but it was there on July 10, 1904, that an officer found a corpse bound up in a mattress.

It did not require a second look to see that the man had been murdered. He had been stabbed in the chest, and had evidently died without a struggle. A purse in the pocket of the dead man contained several collar buttons and a pencil-scrawled note said, "See Mr. Way."

In the trousers pocket was found a little brass check. One side was blank and the other contained simply the number "817." It was one of the kind usually given to laborers by contractors. Here was a mystery with a vengeance. There was nothing to indicate the identity of the dead man, but the penciled note and the brass checks were real clues.

The first move was to find Mr. Way.

Chief of Detectives Gallagher undertook that task himself. He looked in the directory and found not one, but 49 men by that name. It was necessary to interview them one at a time in order to get the right Way. It was no easy task, for the members of the Way family seemed to live in the most remote parts of the city. But eventually the right man was found. He was the assistant superintendent of the United Gas Improvement Co., and he at once identified the handwriting on the penciled note as that of Dennis Kelly, a foreman in his department. Kelly recognized the note as one of several he had given to laborers under his direction. He went to the morgue with the detective and identified the body as that of Antonio Manza, a laborer, who had worked for him the week before.

It did not take long to locate the house where Manza had boarded and the detectives spent 24 hours there searching the place and interviewing all of the people in it. He made a number of discoveries, with the aid of his assistants, and he tabulated them as follows:

First—In the rear bedroom they found a bed without a mattress.

Second—Under the cot were a number of reddish spots. An effort had been made to wash them out, but in this case the crimson evidence could not be erased.

Third—On the floor, next to the cot, were the prints of a small, slender foot, evidently the footprints of a woman.

Fourth—In the kitchen was found a large carving knife. It had a broad blade and was just about the size of the wound in the dead man's chest. The handle was covered with blood.

Fifth—In the stable in the rear of the house were two heavy carts, two horses and two sets of harness, one of which was stiff with perspiration. It fitted the larger horse. This was undoubtedly the animal that had hauled the cart that had carried the body to the park.

Detective Gallagher was sure the person who killed Manza was in the house, but which one of the nineteen was it? In order to shorten his work he arrested all of them and prepared to give them the third degree separately.

The confession came sooner than he expected. The landlady of the house, an attractive woman, said that the dead man had been harassing her with his attentions for many days. He tried to embrace her and she repulsed him with so much violence that he cut her in the shoulder with a small penknife. It was then she picked up the carving knife and stabbed him to death. The men of the house, frightened, had bundled up the body in a mattress and hauled it to the park and hid it—as they thought—in the thick shrubbery.

But it was only one more case proving the old adage that "murder will out."

31st Florida Bank Closed at Ormond

Deposits in Institutions Now Suspended Amount to $36,000,000.

Ormond, Fla., July 25 (A.P.).—The Bank of Ormond, in this exclusive resort, winter home of John D. Rockefeller, sr., closed today as a protection to depositors. Officials of the institution did not disclose whether the millionaire oil magnate kept a deposit here during the summer months, but it was believed he had no funds in the bank at the time it closed.

Officers of the bank said it had deposits in the Merchants Bank and Trust Co. of Daytona Beach, and when the latter institution failed recently, the Bank of Ormond "thus was adversely affected."

Jacksonville, Fla., July 25 (A.P.).—The Bank of Ormond which was closed today, was the 31st Florida financial institution to close since April 5. The latest suspensions were the First National Bank of St. Augustine and the Phifer State Bank of Gainesville, which were closed yesterday.

Approximate aggregate deposits of the 31 banks were $36,000,000.

Drought and Heat Hit Farms in East

Millions of Acres Under Cultivation Wilted by Blazing Sun.

New York, July 25 (A.P.).—Agricultural production in the East, in common with the work in other sections of the country and in Europe, is being seriously affected by prolonged drought. Millions of acres under cultivation in New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and other Eastern sections are wilting under intense heat and the only relief is irrigation—for those farmers fortunate enough to have installed the system.

On Long Island 300,000 acres of potatoes, garden truck, vineyards and orchards have been affected, and reports from upper New York State and New England farmers indicate a similar condition in their sections.

ORANGE HORSE SHOW ENDS WITH THRILLS

Several Equine Stars Shine as Trophies Are Won by Close Margins.

RACE OF 1906 ENACTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., July 25.—Another day that was filled with thrills for Orange and other horseman brought ribbons to many mounts today, the second day of a two-day meet. There were several stars. Birdwood Knight in the winning class for open park hunters was the outstanding, and Broken Glass from Middleburg, was a consistent winner. Birdwood Knight, a chestnut gelding from the stables of Henry Fonda, of Charlottesville, won in an interesting and spectacular duel with Marconita, a bay mare owned by E. W. Noble, of Roanes.

In the open park saddle class, Marconita is one of the consistent winners in the State this year and is a stable mate of Marse Henry, who placed third. There were ten entries in this class, which was one of the outstanding classes of the show this year.

In the Montpelier trophy event, a park saddle class, Birdwood won, giving Mr. Fonda permanent possession of the trophy, his Twylight Maiden having won first last year at Orange. Memorial, entered and ridden by Miss Ferneyhough, of Warrenton, was third. Dew Bank won the event for green hunters, with Kerin, of the same stable, second. Newsboy, a hero of yesterday, placed third.

Richmond Ponies Win.

In the saddle pony class Eugene Sydnor, of Richmond, won a first and second with Lady Fairfax and Miss Woodford. The Roger Bayley entry, Ethelred, was the winner in the free-for-all handicap. Broken Glass, another winner of yesterday, was an easy first for the horse shoe cup donated by Mrs. R. M. Brady, the entry of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Corley, of Midlothian, getting the red ribbon. Broken Glass also won the Corinthian class, an event of 30 entries. Another class of especial interest to Orange County hunters and the followers of the hounds of yesteryear was the Old Guard. This class included only members of the Old Tomahawk Hunt and Deep River Hunt Clubs who rode to hounds previous to 1906. The class was won by John McComb, of Wilmington, Del., with Mr. Sydnor, of Richmond, second, and K. C. Johnson, of Virginia Beach, third. It was a colorful event, the riders wearing the hunting clothes of that time. In a sister and brother event a first was won by an entry of E. B. Sydnor, jr., of Richmond.

Today's races lacked the thrills of yesterday. The first was won easily by Radio, the favorite. In the second cassett the Carver entry had no trouble beating Burton, entered by Irvin Beavers, and Lynnes Trump, a thoroughbred owned by H. I. Lyne, of Willow Grove.

Viola Gentry Recovers Slowly From Injuries

Danville, Va., July 25.—It will be between six and eight weeks before Viola Gentry, aviatrix who recently came to grief at Roosevelt Field while attempting an endurance flight, can be moved from Nassau Hospital, Mineola, N. Y., her relatives here have been informed. While her progress toward recovery is sustained, her multiple injuries will be slow to yield, doctors have advised her kinsmen here, and it cannot be predicted yet whether or not she can fly again. Her specific injuries are two fractured arms, a crushed rib, gashes about the body and a severe scalp wound. Relatives here have not gone to New York because doctors have been fearful lest the excitement incidental to a reunion cause a setback.

Mrs. O. C. Hayes, who lives at Martinsville, said today that as soon as her sister can be moved from the hospital she will be taken to the Hayes home to complete her convalescence.

Y. M. C. A. REGATTA SHOWS FAST TIME

Springfield Camp Is Scene of Varied Program of Sports Events.

TRACK RIVALRY IS KEEN

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., July 25.—The annual canoe regatta at the "Y" Camp, being conducted by the Young Men's Christian Association of Cumberland, on the south branch of the Potomac, near Springfield, W. Va., created more interest than any event of the season.

Both senior and junior doubles were hotly contested and good time was made by all the entries. The senior singles was won by Alert Saum, who crossed the line in 2:29. Joseph Warner pulled in six seconds later for second, while third place went to Charles Thompson, whose time was 2:40. The senior doubles upset all previous dope when Howard Hitchins, of Frostburg, and Graham Ort surprised the camp by hanging up a record of 1:47, followed by Joseph Warner and Milton Vandenberg, in 1:58, and John Lupton and Carl Heuer in 2:01.

Kapp Given Ovation.

Dick Kapp, the winner of the junior singles, equaled the senior time of 2:39, which won him an ovation. Second honors were taken by William Smith in 2:56 and third by Thomas Bess, of Keyser, W. Va., in 2:59.

The junior doubles ran the seniors a close race, despite the difference in size and age. Jack Abbott and Robert Warner taking the laurels in 2:02½. Owen Smith and Dick Kapp paddled it in 2:07½, with Fred Powell and Thomas Bess trailing for third in 2:17.

The third week track meet brought new talent and new names appear in the list of point winners, with points more largely distributed among the entrants. Fred Powell topped the midget class with a total of 13 points, while Junior Hunter, in the junior class, scored 12 and Charles Hill was high man in the senior division with eight.

Traction Firm to Cut Fares for Next Month

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., July 25.—Not to be outdone by the modern merchandiser, the West Penn Utilities today announced bargain day fares for the next month on its various traction and motor bus lines throughout northern and central West Virginia.

The reduction is given to mark the thirtieth anniversary of the institution of traction lines in this territory. From August 1 to August 15 nickel fares will supplant 7-cent car fares in cities and from August 15 to the end of the month interurban fares will be marked down from 7 and 8 cents a zone to 6 cents.

Midnight Fire Destroys Building and Four Cars

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 25.—A midnight fire of undetermined origin, starting on the second floor, last night destroyed the Martinsburg Battery Service Agency Building, on the public square, four automobiles stored on the second floor, and a quantity of tires and furniture, as well as damaging the battery equipment.

W. L. Boyd, owner of the building and manager of the service, would not estimate the loss, which others put at approximately $30,000. Insurance of $25,000 against building and stock was effective. A number of stored automobiles were saved.

Champ No-Tag Driver Held; Car Is Impounded

Save for the keen eyes of Sergt. Leroy Rodgers, in charge of the Bethesda substation of Montgomery County police, Edward H. Schultze, of Chicago, might have hung up a record that probably never has been equaled. As a matter of fact, Schultze probably now can claim the nonstop record for driving without tags.

Schultze was driving his car near Bethesda, when Sergt. Rodgers noticed something wrong with his car. The sergeant wasn't quite sure what it was, and he observed the car for a while before it dawned on him that it bore no license plates.

The motorist appeared quite surprised that the policeman had any objection to his driving without tags, and subsequent questioning brought out that he had driven the car all the way from Chicago without license plates and had planned driving to New York with the car in the same condition. Schultze told Sergt. Rodgers that he bought the car in Illinois and was in a hurry to get away to New York. Unwilling to wait for tags, he arranged with his sister to purchase the tags and mail them to him at a New York address.

The car was impounded by police until the necessary tags could be obtained.

BYRD FELICITATES ANNAPOLIS MAYOR

Quenstedt Gets Radiogram From South Pole on Election.

WAS INVITED ON TRIP

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 25.—From far-off Antarctica in the ice fields around the South Pole, where Commander Richard E. Byrd and his expedition are engaged in explorations, Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt today received a message of congratulations over his recent election as chief executive of the city.

The radiogram, relayed through the New York Times, was dated Little America, Antarctica, July 18, and reads as follows: "To Walter E. Quenstedt, mayor of Annapolis, Md., word has just reached Antarctica of your election as mayor of Annapolis. The members of our expedition join in hearty congratulations and best wishes for a successful administration. R. E. Byrd."

The mayor is a member of the fleet reserve, an organization of naval men, and his comrades flashed the news of his election to the Byrd expedition as soon as the result was known. Today's radiogram, therefore, comes as an acknowledgment.

Quenstedt was among those asked by Commander Byrd to accompany him on the expedition to the Antarctic, but declined. Upon receipt of the radiogram the mayor smilingly remarked that had he joined the Byrd party he would not be mayor of Annapolis.

Representatives of various groups of the denomination will be present at the conference, when it is hoped to merge the thirteen different factions into one organization, with a total of more than 6,000 churches and 3,000,000 members.

DISTILLING PLANT GIVES UP CHARTER

West Virginia Company Had Been Inoperative Since Prohibition.

FIRM ORGANIZED IN 1883

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 25.—Tangible evidence of the work of prohibition was written here today in publication of a notice of the surrender of its State charter by the Hannis Distilling Co. and its withdrawal from business, after 40 years of operation in this city and enjoyment by its product, Hannisville prime whisky, of a wide reputation.

The plant has been inoperative since prohibition became effective except for gradual supervised distribution of its accumulated stock. Its physical plant has for some years been used by a fruit product company, making vinegar. Two years after prohibition became effective, the entire stock of whisky was loaded aboard a special train and taken, under heavy guard, to a Baltimore distillery under the concentration plan for holding stocks of liquor. There has been no liquor here since that time.

In June, 1924, the company reduced its capital stock from $1,000,000 to $500,000. The corporation had its origin in 1883 when permission was granted Philadelphia and Baltimore men to operate in this State. A certificate, indicating the company had also been chartered under the laws of Maryland, was filed in the office of the county court here. In September, 1901, the West Virginia charter was issued. The incorporators were George J. Jarden, Howard M. Cardeza, Henry J. Bissinger, John M. McGlinn, Bernard Corr, of Philadelphia, and Edson Bradley and Thomas H. Wentworth, New York City. In October, 1901, the late Alexander Parks was invested with the power of attorney to represent the corporation and he remained in charge of the great plant until prohibition wrote "finis."

Winchester Jury Audit Plan Vetoed

Inquest's Study of Public Accounts Is Needless, Council Holds.

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 25.—Action of the July city grand jury in recommending an audit of books and accounts of public officials handling public monies was not necessary, it was pointed out at a meeting of the common council last night. Attention was called to the fact that the city already had engaged an accountant to make the audit suggested by the grand jury.

More than that, it was stated that the finance committee of the council also made an audit annually of the books and accounts of officials handling monies, and that in addition the State sent its auditors here at intervals to check the accounts of officers handling State monies.

The council, however, expressed appreciation of the grand jury's interest in civic affairs. Both the grand jury and council disclaimed any reflection upon any official in providing for the audit, which, it was said, is being done "only in the furtherance of the best business policy of the corporation."

Minister, 66, Lands in Jail For Intended Elopement

Tennessean Held at Staunton on Mann Act Charge After 16-Year-Old Girl Boards Train; Marriage Was Object, He Explains.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., July 2.—An elopement, and nothing more.

Briefly, that is Reuben B. Turner's explanation of the predicament he is in. There was no intention to violate any law, he asserts—certainly not the law he is charged with violating.

Turner, who is about 66 years old and says he is a minister of the Church of God, was arrested here Tuesday by a deputy United States marshal on a Federal warrant alleging an infraction of the Mann act. He says he is from Newport, Tenn., but his efforts to have friends in that State intercede in his behalf, at least to furnish bond for his release from the local jail, have been fruitless.

Turner's story is this:

He saw the name of a 16-year-old Augusta County girl in a farm periodical. He wrote to her, and a correspondence followed, progressing to the point where he was invited to visit in the home of the girl's parents. This he did, remaining in this county two weeks.

Turner asserts his attentions were accepted by the girl and she accepted his proposal to wed. When the father was approached on the subject, he rebelled at the idea, refusing to give his daughter's hand in marriage. With this situation existing, Turner says the girl expressed the desire to leave home so they could be married elsewhere.

The prisoner admits that he gave the girl $15 to pay railroad fare to Newport, Tenn., where he was to join her and they were to be married. The girl left Staunton on an early morning train Tuesday, alone. Later in the day her father came to Staunton, having learned of his daughter's disappearance, and started proceedings against Turner, resulting in his arrest.

Turner is being held for action in Federal Court.

VIRGINIA SPORTSMEN WILL CONVENE SOON

State Izaak Walton League Plans to Be Laid August 8 at Lynchburg.

CONSERVATION IS TOPIC

Lynchburg, Va., July 25 (A.P.).—Sportsmen and conservationists from all sections of the Old Dominion will meet in Lynchburg on August 8 to complete plans for a State Izaak Walton League through which to coordinate their efforts for the protection of the game and wild life of Virginia. M. B. Mount, of Lynchburg, is in charge of the arrangements.

A. Willis Robertson, of Lexington, chairman of the commission of game and inland fisheries and one of the best known sportsmen of the State, will attend, as well as delegates from each of the 24 Izaak Walton chapters in Virginia. The meeting here is an outgrowth of the dinner given at Gordonsville recently by the Orange County Chapter when plans for organizing a State association were indorsed by Virginia sportsmen.

"This movement has the hearty indorsement of the commission of game and inland fisheries," M. D. Hart, secretary of the commission said today in discussing the meeting. "Heretofore the Izaak Walton chapters have been useful and have done splendid work but a State organization of sportsmen such as will be formed at Lynchburg should be a great factor in the preservation of the State's wild life. Such an organization would coordinate the efforts of sportsmen who are interested in conservation."

Approximately 50 sportsmen are expected to attend the meeting. The 24 chapters, which will each send one or more delegates, are located in the cities and towns in all sections of Virginia. There are strong chapters in Orange County, Norfolk, Richmond and other cities that will probably send a half-dozen delegates each.

High School Teacher Saves Drowning Girl

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., July 25.—Miss Louise Porter, 18, of this town, narrowly escaped drowning late yesterday when she was rescued in the Chester River off Rolph's Wharf by David McMenamin, member of the faculty of Newark, Del., high school, who went to her aid after Raymond Moffett, Chestertown, had thrown them a rope and a life preserver.

Miss Porter swam out in the channel and became panic-stricken after she had gone down twice. Miss Miriam Smith screamed for help when she saw her friend disappear and McMenamin hastened to the spot, holding the girl and making his way to the landing pier until he caught the rope. First aid treatment was administered and the girl was resuscitated.

Man Injures His Arm In Suicide Attempt

Cumberland, Md., July 25.—John Edward Hartsock, aged 40, an orchard worker of near Town Creek, this county, in an attempt at suicide at his home today, landed in jail with a left arm badly crippled, the result of the shot intended for his heart hitting the arm. He attempted to place the muzzle of a shot gun against his heart, but the barrel was too long and when he pulled the trigger the load tore the flesh from the elbow. It is thought he will be permanently crippled.

He was arrested by Deputy Sheriffs James McGregory and Robert Harvard. Hartsock had made threats, it is said, to end his life after his wife left him and came to Cumberland to take employment following domestic difficulties. They have two small children.

Unmuzzled Dogs to Die In Takoma Park Campaign

Chief of Police Announces War of Extermination on Canines, Wherever Found, Not Conforming to Law; Owners Threaten Court Action.

Aroused by the continued reports of persons bitten by dogs in the town, Chief of Police Lewis A. Cutshaw, of Takoma Park, Md., has announced a war of extermination to begin Monday. On that date, the chief announced yesterday, the police force of the town will shoot on sight any dog found within the confines of the town limits which is not wearing a muzzle as provided for in the town ordinances.

Residents of the town have been notified that dogs must wear muzzles whether they are on public property or within the confines of the owners' properties or the animals will be summarily dealt with. Chief Cutshaw said he had tried hard to persuade owners to provide muzzles for their dogs but to no avail and that he now proposes to invoke the supreme penalty in upholding the law.

Letter-carriers, delivery men and a number of citizens have made repeated protest against the vicious habits of many of the dogs and in several instances warrants have been sworn out for the owners of the dogs and these cases will be tried by Police Judge A. L. Wilson. The town ordinance requires that dogs be muzzled from May 1 to September 1 whether in the public highways or other public places or on the premises of the owner.

Several residents have declared that the law is an infringement on their personal rights and that they intend carrying the cases to the higher courts if their dogs are shot on private property. Regardless of this, the chief says he plans to show the world that the law was placed on the books for a purpose.
